$50,000 FIRE IN BROCKTON

BOSTON AMERICAN

NIGHT EXTRA
FIFTH EDITION

VOL. 8—No. 148. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16, 1911. PRICE ONE CENT.

ASTOR AND MRS. FORCE QUARREL

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Madeeline Force, fiancee of Colonel John Jacob Astor, is ill at her home owing to attacks made on her coming marriage. Colonel Astor was a caller there today and a strange scene followed. He was met at the door by Mrs. Force, mother of the bride-to-be, who led him at once into the parlor. Mrs. Force apparently was angry about something for which she held the Colonel responsible.

"You must do it, Colonel. I tell you, you must. That is all there is to it," the reporters standing on the sidewalk in front of the house heard her exclaim.

Colonel Astor listened meekly to what she had to say. Mrs. Force with angry gestures continued to talk in a loud tone of voice. No other part of the conversation could be distinguished. When they saw that the reporters were watching them they left the room.

A few minutes later Mrs. Force left the house. She appeared to be greatly agitated, and when the reporters approached her she waved them away.

"I have nothing to say—not a word," she declared angrily. She walked rapidly through Thirty-seventh street for a short distance, then suddenly turned and went back to the house.

"Is it true that Miss Force is very ill?" the reporters asked Colonel Astor.

"Oh, I believe she is ill," he replied.

"Is her illness serious?" persisted the newspapermen.

The Colonel hesitated for a moment, then answered: "Well, I don't know. I think it is just nervousness."

"Will her illness hasten your marriage?" he was asked.

"I don't think so," he answered. "We have not decided when it will take place."

$50,000 BLAZE IN BROCKTON

The explosion of a huge gasoline tank in the plant of the Tuck Manufacturing Company, on Ames street, Brockton, started a fire that caused a loss of $50,000, and threatened to spread to valuable property adjoining. All employes of the plant escaped saftly with the exception of two men. One was badly burned and the other received injuries of a serious nature in jumping from a second-story window. Two alarms were sounded, and the firemen had a hard battle.

The flames started in the northeast corner of the plant, which is devoted to the manufacture of shoe making tools, and before an alarm could be sounded began to sweep through the factory. There was a rush of employes to escape from the building.

The big stables of the Holmes Coal Company and the coal yard of the concern were in the path of the flames, but the fire was prevented from reaching them, although they were several times in danger from sparks. The factory of the Hideite Leather Company, adjoining, was also menaced.

Charles Hobart, engineer of the Tuck factory, was standing not far from the gasolene tank when it exploded and was badly burned. He made his way out, beating at his clothes to extinguish the flames which had ignited them. Frank Stevens who was standing farther away, managed to jump out of a window before the flames advanced upon him.

The deafening rear of the explosion and the rush of the flames created a panic in the neighborhood. A second alarm followed the first almost immediately. The firemen were able to get lines on the blazing factory promptly and were soon able to confine it to the building in which it started.

It was a two-hours' hard battle, however, before the fire was out. The Tuck company is owned principally by Lou Weston. It is one of the oldest and largest concerns in its line in the country.

96-MILE FLIGHT BY ATWOOD

PETTISVILLE, O.—Aviator Atwood passed here, ninety-six miles from Elkhart, at 10:12 o'clock.

PETTISVILLE, O., Aviator Atwood landed near here at 1:12. He announced he would resume his flight at once. This is thirty-five miles from Toledo.

PETTISVILLE, O., Aug. 16.—Harry N. Atwood, the young Boston aviator who is making a record flight from St. Louis to Boston, alighted here at 10.12 to-day and announced that he would cut out Toledo as one of his stopping places.

The Toledo Chamber of Commerce was asked to pay $1,000 to Atwood to have him make a stop in that city. The Chamber of Commerce declined to pay that figure. Hence Atwood will fly over, or around that city, and will keep on to Sandusky, the next stopping place, without alighting at Toledo.

Atwood planned to start from here at 4 o'clock this afternoon, after taking a six-hour rest. He arrived here at 10:12 a. m., having flown ninety-six miles from Elkhart, Ind., from where he started the third leg of his 1476-mile flight at 8:10.

With three-quarters of the population of Elkhart as spectators Atwood made a fine getaway from that city. Business was virtually suspended. Whistles blew, bells rang and people cheered and Atwood "took off," rose to a 300-foot height, circled around twice and then darted off to the east. His course lay along the route of the Lake Shore road.

Before starting Atwood said: "The air's fine. I may break a speed record if it keeps up this way. I expect to make Toledo before 1 o'clock."

Toledo is 148 miles from Elkhart by railroad. Atwood would undoubtedly have made the run in the expected time, but he changed his plans when he heard, on arriving here, that the Toledo Chamber of Commerce did not care to meet his price.

Mayor on the Job at City Hall After Trip Abroad

The Mayor was snapped to-day as he paused to receive congratulations on his safe return from Europe. He was surrounded by baggage just brought in by a busy truckman. Photograph by R. W. Sears of the AMERICAN.

Do You Want to Marry Hetty Green's Son?

He tells you just the kind of daughter-in-law he wants the richest woman in the world to have in Sunday's American.

Oh, Have You Seen Those Sky-Scraper Hats!

FITZGERALD BACK; TELLS OF HIS TRIP

Mayor Fitzgerald arrived home from Europe to-day, setting foot on Boston soil again at 9:35.

He is the picture of health and good cheer.

He smiled broadly at the uproarious welcomes given him when he landed.

Boards Cutter at Quarantine

He came back across the Atlantic on the Cunard liner Franconia, leaving the liner at Quarantine to board the revenue cutter Winnisimmett, on which he made the rest of the harbor trip to the land.

The Winnisimmett brought him to its slip at Eastern avenue wharf. There was a delegation of personal friends to meet the Mayor at quarantine. These came up the harbor with him on the Winnisimmett. At Eastern avenue wharf there was a second and larger delegation of friends, politicians and others. They cheered the Mayor vociferously the second they caught sight of him at the boat's rail.

The Mayor has come back from abroad brim full of ideas for Boston.

His paramount idea about Boston remains the same, however. That idea is that Boston is the finest city on earth, bar none.

He thinks the foreign cities are well governed in very many ways.

He brings from Germany, where he spent much of his foreign tour, a distinctly favorable impression of the sobriety that prevails in a land of beer and wines, as compared with conditions in a country like Great Britain where hard liquors are used. He says on this point:

"MORE DRUNKENNESS IN LONDON THAN GERMANY."

"There is more drunkenness in London than in all Germany."

Speaking of his trip, of his impressions and what he gained for Boston's benefit, the Mayor said:

"I won't talk Boston politics, boys, until I am acquainted with the situation. There is no use to ask any questions, because I don't know how to answer them.

"I will say this on State politics, that the Republicans have irretrievably lost the State by their failure to pass a State Finance Commission law. Such a law is needed, needed much more than a Boston Finance Commission, especially to examine into the matter of city and town expenditures in the State. At present Boston, which is assessed at about 100 cents on the dollar, pays far more than its proportion of the State taxes, because of the undervaluation of other cities and towns. The failure of the Republican Legislature to establish a State Finance Commission is indefensible.

"Two things I have in mind at present for the betterment of Boston as the result of my trip. One is the matter of high pressure gas for street lighting, which I will take up with the gas company immediately. The other is the beautifying of Copley square.

"The examples of high-pressure gas lighting in streets and parks which I saw in England and Germany convinced me that it is the best and most economical method of street lighting. We have nothing like it in this country. I should like to see Copley square lighted in that manner, and if it is possible I shall have it. During my first administration I had $40,000 appropriated for the beautifying of Copley square. This money was spent in other ways by my successor. But Copley square, as it is now, is hideous, and I shall recommend an immediate appropriation to beautify it. I have talked with Mr. Nolen of the new city planning commission and this has his sanction.

MET CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PARTY IN BRUSSELS.

"The Chamber of Commerce party I met in Brussels and accompanied them to Dusseldorf, Frankfort, Hamburg, Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Nuremberg, Munich, Vienna and Budapest, where the official program was finished, and the members took up travelling for pleasure and sight-seeing, and I came home.

"Everywhere we were greeted with spontaneous good feeling. At Hamburg we were entertained at the Rathaus in a hall built in the time of Charlemagne, in which visitors are seldom admitted and women hardly ever. Everywhere we were shown the greatest honor. Only two or three discordant notes were struck. At Berlin, and I believe one other city,

RAISING A FAMILY ON $7 A WEEK!

SHADES OF FRENZIED FINANCE! IT SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE, DOESN'T IT? YET THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF NEW ENGLAND CITIZENS WHO ARE ACCOMPLISHING THIS SEEMINGLY IMPOSSIBLE FEAT IN HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS. IN FACT, SCORES OF FAMILIES ARE LIVING ON A MUCH SMALLER SUM, EVEN AS LOW AS $5.50 A WEEK. JUST HOW THEY ARE DOING IT WILL BE TOLD AND ILLUSTRATED IN NEXT SUNDAY'S AMERICAN. IT'S AN OPTIMISTIC STORY OF OPTIMISTIC PEOPLE, AND YOU'LL FIND IT INTERESTING.

AUNT ELSIE TO AID GERAGHTYS

Whether "Jack" Geraghty, who eloped with Julia Steele French, is to be forgiven by the bride's family and accepted by them as a son-in-law, depends on the ability of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, aunt of the bride, as a peacemaker, according to despatches to-day from Newport.

For the sake of harmony Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is a clever factor in the family affairs, has enrolled herself as an ally of young Geraghty.

She has left Newport for New York, where she is to meet Mrs. Frances Ormond French, the bride's paternal grandmother, who is en voyage from Europe. Mrs. Vanderbilt seeks to enroll the grandmother on her side, the object being to induce the French family to forgive the eloping couple without reservation and to receive "Jack" Geraghty into the family circle.

Conditional Welcome.

It is well understood that Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French, the bride's parents, and her uncle, Stuyvesant Leroy, stand ready any time to take her back home, but without "Jack."

This the bride, according to her own flat-footed statement, will never consider for a minute.

Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, remembering doubtless her own marital unhappiness—she is the former wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt—has concluded that the family will have to wait forever before the bride will listen to any overtures which do not include her husband.

Whatever her personal preferences in the matter, Mrs. Vanderbilt believes that it is better for the family to take the bride and her husband together than to remain forever estranged from the daughter.

To-day the relatives of the bride are aligned thus:

Willing to take back Mrs. Geraghty, but refusing so far to accept "Jack" Geraghty, are Mrs. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French and Stuyvesant Leroy, brother of Mrs. Amos Tuck French and uncle of the bride.

Willing to accept "Jack" Geraghty for the sake of peace, if for no other reason, is Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, aunt of the bride and sister of Amos Tuck French.

Await Grandma French.

Then there is the uncertain factor of the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Frances Ormond French of Villa St. Priest, Cannes, France. It happened, by ironical coincidence, that this elderly and determined woman sailed from Havre, France, last week Tuesday, the very day that Julia French eloped. She was on voyage to see her relatives on this side. She doubtless has been informed by wireless of the elopement.

The grandmother is coming on one of the slower liners, so she is not expected in New York till Friday or Saturday.

She will be met at the pier by Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, her own daughter and self-constituted peacemaker in this French family embroglio.

It is expected that Mrs. Vanderbilt will argue to her mother about as follows:

Julia is married—twice married, in fact—to this young Mr. Geraghty. Whether he is personally acceptable to Julia's parents or not, it is better, for the sake of family harmony and public appearance, for us to bid Julia to return to our family with the man she has chosen for a husband. We do not wish to remain estranged from Julia all our life, and she seems determined, from what she has told again and again through the newspapers, that she will not be parted from her husband.

"Julia is young. She is, or thinks she is, deeply in love. She has married him again in his faith, after the first elopement marriage by a Congregational clergyman. The couple defy anyone to separate them, and it seems to be best, come what may, to achieve an amicable adjustment with them."

Such is believed to be the arguments that Mrs. Vanderbilt is conning over in her mind to-day, while waiting the arrival of her mother.

The argument for acceptance of the new son-in-law may appeal to the grandmother with personal force, for her own son, Amos Tuck French, had some trouble, if report is correct, in getting into the good grace of the family of his wife.

When Amos Tuck French married Pauline Leroy several years ago the bride's parents, the Stuyvesant Leroys, were said to be against the match, but the trouble finally smoothed over.

Recall Mother's Romance.

The eloping bride has mentioned this circumstance in one of her interviews to the AMERICAN. She said that she hoped her mother would remember a somewhat similar difficulty she had when she was a girl, and when the man of her choice was not looked upon favorably at first by her own parents.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's plan, after meeting her mother, is to have her hasten to Tuxedo, where the Amos Tuck Frenches are now holding aloof from the couple, according to the accepted belief in Newport to-day.

If Mrs. Vanderbilt succeeds in reconciling the opposite elements in the family, the next thing will be to have a message of forgiveness dispatched to the young couple in Springfield, bidding them both to come to Tuxedo.

That the invitation shall include "both" and not the bride alone is believed to be the only road to reuniting the bride with her parents.

Reports from Springfield show the "Happy Jacks," as the young couple are known, are thoroughly enjoying their honeymoon, which after their re-marriage in the parish house of St. Michael's Cathedral, they laughingly allude to as their second honeymoon.

Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt may be just the person to solve the present acute distresses of the French family.

She is a brilliant, brainy woman. She has much energy, putting to shame some of the dilettante men of the Newport and Tuxedo set.

When news of the elopement first descended upon the scandalized French family at "Shady Maples," Newport, it was Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt who led the famous automobile chase over the night roads into Connecticut. This chase was unsuccessful, but that was not for lack of promptness on Mrs. Vanderbilt's part.

Failing to head off the fugitives and thus prevent the first marriage, Mrs. Vanderbilt has set about what she deems the next best thing—reconcile the daughter and family and let the turmoil subside. This will give the family rest from the avalanche of publicity that has overwhelmed them.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is fond of her headstrong niece, too. Mrs. Geraghty has always spoken kindly of "Aunt Elsie." It is said that if Mrs. Vanderbilt had had the sole handling of the girl when the romance was in its earliest stages, she might have persuaded Julia French that she would best wed within her own social circle, and not set family councils by the ears by an alliance which would be bound to cause a furore. She might have laughed and coaxed the girl out of this youthful love. Then, again, she might not. Mrs. Geraghty has declared it a case of love at first sight.

At all events it is believed that the efforts of Mrs. Vanderbilt at this stage may work out some solution of the Geraghty problem, as the Frenches view it. She has influence with Mrs. Geraghty. She also has influence, of course, with her own mother, Mrs. Frances Ormond French. She may, if anyone, be able to bring harmony out of the present discord.

Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a dinner in Newport last night. She lost no time to-day, as soon as she was freed from the dinner obligations, in going over to New York to be first on the ground when her mother arrives from abroad.

The decision of Mrs. Frances Ormond French, the grandmother, will be an important factor. She is a woman of firm opinion and great will. She has high social standing, both in this country and abroad.

Young Mrs. Geraghty, while still longing for a reconciliation with her parents, has apparently decided that she can afford to wait for the parental blessing. She is consoled somewhat by the many beautiful and costly presents sent her by Newport friends and relatives. The fact that relatives have seen fit to notice her runaway match and give it approval by sending wedding gifts is a source of much pleasure to both bride and bridegroom. Letters from Newport friends have come steadily and the daily mail is heavy. Some letters give advice as to how to spend their honeymoon and married life, others are humorous, but only those from Mrs. Geraghty's friends have been saved and answered. Several letters came from San Francisco and ten have come from Canada.

HOW TO SUCCEED

During the last few years conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well.

So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited everyone to test it, free of cost, before purchasing.

It is a physician's prescription.

They have on file thousands of letters received from former sufferers who are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will gladly forward you a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free.

HEIRESS BRIDE IN COURT CASE

James Francis Owen of Brighton was married at Lee today to Miss Susie Gertrude Duffy, an heiress [illegible] whom he met through long and bitter litigation over the property left to the bride and her mother.

Mrs. Owen is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Duffy of Laurel street, Lee. Mrs. Duffy is the daughter of the late Mrs. Susan H. Van Nort of New York by Mrs. Van Nort's first husband. Mrs. Duffy's stepfather, the late George M. Van Nort, was for many years commissioner of works in New York and left his widow $200,000. Mrs. Van Nort died intestate and a legal battle for her property ensued.

Mrs. Duffy had been on [illegible] terms [illegible] though not seeing her much in late years. Mrs. Owen, the granddaughter of Mrs. Van Nort, had been named for the latter and had visited her in New York.

Met in Court Case.

When the litigation over Mrs. Van Nort's property began the granddaughter, the bride of to-day's wedding, was only thirteen years old. Among the witnesses on Mrs. Duffy's side was Mrs. Margaret Owen of this city. Mrs. Duffy was living in New York with her daughter, Susie. Mrs. Owen went to New York, accompanied by her son, James Francis Owen, then seventeen years old. This brought about the first meeting between Susie Gertrude Duffy and James Francis Owen. The boy and girl acquaintance begun then resulted in the romance which was crowned by to-day's bridal.

Mrs. Duffy's rights in the Van Nort estate, as the daughter of Mrs. Van Nort by a former marriage, were established, despite the fight made by relatives of Van Nort. Mrs. Duffy invested her share of the estate so judiciously that her property is now estimated at $500,000. This will be shared eventually by Mrs. Owen and four other children.

Mrs. Duffy and her family settled in Tyringham, near Lee. Susie Gertrude Duffy attended Tyringham schools, then went to Notre Dame Academy in Roxbury and later to Presentation Academy at St. Hyacinth, Canada. Last year she went abroad with her mother. They toured Europe, were received and blessed by the Pope and attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

To-day's wedding took place in St. Mary's Church, Lee, at 10 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Prendergast.

Honeymoon in Maine.

Miss Bertha Lurie of Chicago was maid of honor. Thomas Driscoll of Boston was best man. Mrs. Frank Dupont of Pittsfield, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bride was given away by her brother, Daniel Keegan Duffy. The ushers were Frank Dupont, Edward Murtagh of Boston, Archibald Merlo of Pittsfield and John O'Brien of East Lee.

The bridal couple motored to Pittsfield this afternoon en route to a month's honeymoon in Maine. They will live at No. 65 Mansfield street, Allston.

Mr. Owen is a graduate of Boston Latin School and is now a travelling salesman for a Boston wholesale millinery house.

TROOPS TO RUN BRITISH TRAINS

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Following an extraordinary meeting of the Cabinet, called by Premier Asquith, it was unofficially reported to-day that the government has decided in the event of a national railroad strike to place the lines under military control of the War Office. The royal engineers and armed service corps are the branches which would be used should this course be adopted.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Aug. 16.—Flaunting their defiance of the government and incensed to fury by the killing of two of their number by soldiers last night, mobs gathered to-day and renewed rioting. The riotous spirit yesterday manifested was shown toward the police and military forces and some of the mobs threatened to kill the soldiers.

Wild disorder prevailed through the night and some streets echoed incessantly with the clang of arms and the shouts of the lawless men and women who jeered and fought with the guarding forces.

At times the glow of fires, set by the torches of incendiaries, lighted up the sky. Members of bands of strikers made vain efforts to break through the police cordon thrown around the landing stages while double platoons of soldiers held the streets with rows of gleaming bayonets.

The police learned to-day that dynamite had been secured by the strikers and it was feared that they would resort to bombs. Hundreds of special constables were sworn in and despatched to patrol the neighborhood where most of the striking dockers live. Detectives were sent among the strike leaders to learn their plans.

More soldiers poured into Liverpool to-day and camps were established in public parks. St. George's hall is far too small to accommodate all the men.

The soldiers have displayed remarkable temper in the face of the showers of missiles the frenzied men and women of the lower sections of the city have hurled at them. Only when their men have been bruised and bleeding almost beyond endurance have the commanders given the order to shoot to kill.

An illustration of the desperateness of the strikers and their sympathizers was shown when five prison vans, escorted by fifty hussars, which were carrying riot prisoners from the police court in Waltham jail, were attacked by 3,000 members of the roughest class in Vauxhall street, who tried to rescue the prisoners. The mob attacked the soldiers with missiles of every description, and in defending themselves the hussars fired. At first blanks were used, and then ball cartridges. In this affray one man was killed and many persons were severely wounded.

Tunnel Bargain Basement

An incident so strange you'd hardly believe it could happen.

Yet it did happen—Monday—in the Tunnel Bargain Basement. A New York woman here on her vacation read in the Sunday paper of the sale in the Basement of dresses from Sheridan's, 29 West 34th Street, New York. She knew Sheridan's—knew the high character of the merchandise they carried—in fact, she had been in their store only a few weeks before. But she couldn't quite understand how such dresses were on sale in a "bargain basement" or how they could be sold at one-half Sheridan's prices, which she had always considered reasonable. So she thought it worth while to investigate. In her own words, this is what she discovered:

"Yes, they were Sheridan's dresses all right, for I saw at least six models that I had seen less than a month ago at Sheridan's—and they were at half Sheridan's prices, too. One model I recall was at $5.00 less than half price. That Tunnel Bargain Basement is certainly a great place. I wish we had something like it in New York."

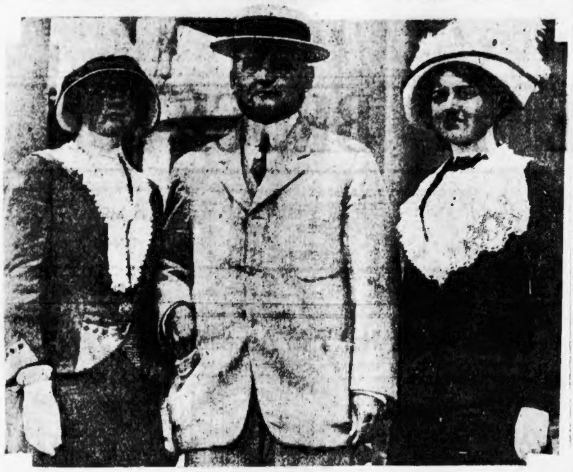
Mayor and His Two Daughters Back in Boston



An American photographer snapped Mr. Fitzgerald and his daughters as they were leaving the Revenue Cutter Winnisimmet which took them off the Franconia and landed them at the South Ferry. Miss Agnes is at the left and Miss Rose at the right.

MYSTERY IN GIRL'S ARREST

For sheer audacity the Boston police, the local jewelers and the State House officials are willing to yield the palm to Vera Darling, a demure appearing girl of less than twenty years. She is accused of impersonating one of the twin daughters of Governor Foss, of cooly having $5,000 worth of diamond jewelry sent to the State House from Shreve, Crump & Low's store and, incidentally, of getting away with two diamond pendants worth $575 in the course of the transaction.

Considerable mystery attaches to this girl, who has been arrested, bailed out and whose career is quite a puzzle to the headquarters detectives.

She dresses richly, but in good taste.

She enjoys the services of a lady's maid. It was by aid of a former maid that the detectives secured trace of the girl.

She rides in automobiles. She came in a car to Shreve, Crump & Low's store when she first announced herself as Miss Foss.

When, after a few weeks' search, she was arrested, she was just drawing up to the Hotel Lenox in a car. She came there, as she thought, to meet her former maid. Instead, she encountered Inspector Mitchell of headquarters, who had laid this trap for her.

Foss Heard of Arrest.

Governor Foss, Mrs. Foss and especially the twin daughters, Misses Esther and Helen Foss, are not at all pleased at any girl representing herself so cooly as one of the Foss twins. The Foss family is now en route to San Francisco to attend the wedding of Benjamin Foss, the Governor's son. Before they left the city yesterday, they knew that Vera Darling had been arrested.

Charles H. Crump of Shreve, Crump & Low explains how the girl came to their jewelry store and had jewelry sent to the State House. He says:

"On June 14 a young woman came to the store. She introduced herself as a daughter of Governor Foss and said she wished to see some diamond pendants. She was assigned a clerk. She came in for two or three days and finally picked out several pendants. She asked to have them sent up to the State House so that her father could look at them. She said she would meet the clerk there."

Naturally the diamond clerk was most attentive to the supposed daughter of the Governor. No time was lost in taking the pendants to the State House. The clerk who had waited upon the girl took the jewels up in person.

At the State House there came a rude shock. The Governor knew nothing about any diamond pendants for his daughters. The fair customer was nowhere to be seen. The clerk went back to the store with the diamonds and told himself he would like to see that girl just for a few minutes.

Two Pendants Recovered.

Later the jewelry firm discovered that two pendants, worth $575, were missing. Suspicion fell on the mysterious girl. A detective was employed. One of the pendants was found at the Boston Loan Company. It had been pledged for $75 by a girl giving the name of Vera Darling.

The loan clerk recalled a chance remark which the girl had made when she pawned the pendant. This gave the police a clue to a lady's maid who had worked for "Vera Darling." The police secured the assistance of this maid and trailed the girl from Boston to Rockland, Me., to Bangor, to New York and finally back to Boston, where the arrest was accomplished. She was taken on a secret indictment warrant.

The police say the girl's right name is Vera Dowling. She denied all knowledge of the pendant. After a night in the Tombs she was arraigned in the Superior Court. She pleaded not guilty and was as self-possessed as could be. The court fixed bail at $1,000. But the girl pleaded for a less amount, saying a cash bail could be furnished in $500. This was accepted by the court. It was immediately produced by a well-dressed, middle-aged man, who was in court. This man then escorted the girl from court.

When arrested the girl said she was studying dentistry in Boston. The lady's maid told the police that she was a dental student here at one time.

To-day the police recovered the other pendant.

MAYOR BACK WITH SOME NEW IDEAS; FIRST INTERVIEW

papers unfriendly to us called us spies upon the German industrial system and advised our being hoodwinked by our entertainment committee.

"At the Krupp gun works we were refused admission to the works, but that was because of a general rule against visitors and not aimed especially at us, and I think if the matter had been worked up properly in advance we would have been given a chance to see that wonderful plant.

"One thing that struck me very forcibly was the manner in which alcoholic drinks are handled in Continental Europe. Why, even the city halls have beer garden attachments.

"We were taken directly from the banquet hall to the beer garden connected with the city hall at Dusseldorf and stayed there until 3 o'clock in the morning although it was on Sunday.

SAW CHILDREN DRINKING WINE AND BEER IN GERMANY.

"I even saw children drinking wine and beer, and yet I saw more drunkenness, misery, poverty in one day in London than I saw all the time I was on the continent. Beer sells for two cents a glass in Germany and lemonade for twenty. Hotels base their charges for accommodations on the presumption that a man's wine and beer bill will be large, and if it is not he will find an extra shilling or so tagged on his [illegible].

"I think this trip will be a splendid thing for America. Everywhere we went we got into personal touch with people. We invited people to come to Boston's big business convention next year by word of mouth while shaking their hands, and we received most enthusiastic replies.

"In Germany they talked much about the power of America, about the strength of America, about the prosperity of American merchants and manufacturers, the wonderful growth of American commerce. The Germans said to us we do not want war, we want peace. Especially do we want peace with America. And this visit of American business men will do much to insure that peace which we all so much desire.

"Boston will benefit by this trip, not only because I was there. Superintendent of Highways James H. Sullivan was there and gained many valuable points on municipal administration, but because all these representative men, members of the Chamber of Commerce, had their views enlarged upon municipal affairs by noting the conditions of the European cities.

Hamburg Debt $200,000,000.

"Hamburg has a debt of $200,000,000 and no sinking fund provisions provided for reducing it. They say we have to spend the money or we will lose the business. And they spend money like water for municipal improvements. Boston's $9,000,000 harbor appropriation will do wonders in Boston, but it would be a drop in the bucket in some of the continental ports or some of the English ports.

"The rivalry for trade between European cities is very fierce, and because the countries are small and the cities are jealous, laws are passed by one State hampering the ports of another. When we were at Vienna they were complaining because Budapest had put a tax on commerce on the Danube which was inimical to Vienna's commercial prosperity.

"Boston has natural advantages as a port, better than any we visited in Europe. A small expenditure of money is needed to make it one of the first ports of the world. This question of the improvement of the port of Boston has been one of my fads for years, and nothing pleases me so much as to see that my dreams are coming true. I am very glad that I have the appointment of one of these commissioners who will spend the $9,000,000 appropriated by the State for dock improvements.

"I am looking for the biggest man I can find to fill that place. Our visit to Europe was inopportune as to the time chosen for it, as most of the burgomasters and business men of the cities we visited were away at Summer resorts. But in nearly every case the officials and larger business men cut into their vacations, returned to their cities to welcome us and to show us what was to be seen.

"Franconia Beautiful Ship."

"We enjoyed our trip over and back on the Franconia greatly. She is a beautiful ship and should be patronized by New England people. Now that we are trying to develop the port of Boston New England people should patronize Boston ships. There should be one ship of the Franconia class leave Boston each week at least. The Cunard line will put a sister ship, the Laconia, on next year. This will give us fortnightly sailings on ships of this class.

"The White Star Line should be prevailed upon to sail ships in alternate weeks of the same type and class of the Franconia and Laconia. The Hamburg-American line could probably be prevailed upon to come to Boston with passenger ships. I had the pleasure of meeting high officials in that line, and they talked most encouragingly."

Photographs Thoughts By Using "V" Rays.

PARIS.—Much interest has been aroused here by the announcement of the scientific investigator, Commander Darget, of the success of experiments in photographing human thought. Commander Darget told the Academy of Sciences that he had succeeded in obtaining photographic impressions of thoughts of concrete objects. He produced as evidence two photographs, one showing a walking stick and the other a bottle. He explained that after staring a long time at the object to be photographed in a strong red light, he fixed his gaze with all the will power at his command on a photographic plate. At the end of a quarter of an hour the image of the object appeared on the negative. According to the Commander's theory, these astounding results are due to certain obscure light rays which he calls "V" rays.

DISFIGURING ECZEMA CURED IN 2 WEEKS

Blisters Broke and Formed Scabs. Nose Covered with Them. Very Itchy. Used Cuticura Remedies. Now Hasn't a Single Mark

"My nephew first showed signs of eczema on the middle finger, and it came out like a blister. His mother thought he had gotten a burn in some way unknown to her, and she treated it as such. He must have rubbed his face with that hand, as it then broke out on his nose the same way. When the blisters broke, they shrivelled up and formed scabs. His nose was covered with scabs, and it was very itchy. He was badly disfigured with unsightly scabs. At first, his nose was sore, and it gradually became worse so his mother took him to the doctor. He gave her some preparation, and told her to rub the scabs off every day, and anoint the affected part with the medicine he gave her.

"The man must have been insane, as that was extreme torture to the child who was only two years old at the time, and that was two years ago. Well, we decided that that treatment would have to end. I suggested Cuticura Ointment and they bought it and put it on freely every day for two weeks. He had the eczema for four weeks altogether, but was getting gradually worse until they used the Cuticura Remedies, and he was cured in two weeks. He most certainly would have been scarred with the other treatment, but now he hasn't a single mark. Cuticura Remedies cured him in two weeks, and now we always keep them in the house." (Signed) Miss Ida Slavin, 283 South Fifth St., Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 4, 1911.

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and a box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Although sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 13A, Boston.

To Enter The AMERICAN'S $10,000 Proverb Contest!

1000 Prizes in All

Read the Prize List and Start by Solving To-day's Picture. Then Send for Any Back Numbers You May Need.

Every resource and opportunity is offered to those who wish to start in the Boston American's Proverb Contest now.

Back numbers of the puzzle pictures—that is, all the pictures which have already appeared in the paper—may be obtained from the Contest Department, at the regular rates of the paper. Daily back numbers are 1c (plus return postage); Sunday back numbers are 5c (plus return postage).

The American's official PROVERB BOOK, issued expressly for use in this contest, is obtainable at 25c a copy from the Contest Department at 275 Devonshire Street. If sent by mail, send only money order.

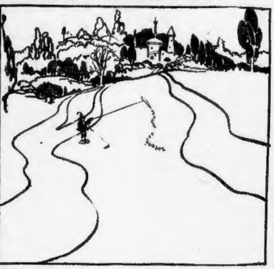
This PROVERB BOOK contains the correct answers to each and every puzzle picture which will be used in this competition.

It is the only official guide to the contest, and all contestants are especially warned against purchasing any other than the official American PROVERB BOOK, obtainable directly through the American.

Armed with the back numbers and a copy of the PROVERB BOOK, any person is equipped to win one of the magnificent prizes which are offered.

A $2,500 Bungalow Home at Nantasket, a Metz 1912 4-cylinder Runabout Automobile, another High-Grade Automobile, two speedy Power Boats, two Upright Pianos, a $200 Symphony Grand Graphophone and 990 other prizes will go to the most successful picture solvers. Provided you live in New England, place of residence has nothing to do with the contest.

This Is Picture No. 59



What Proverb Does This Picture Represent?

Proverb Contest Editor, No. 59
Boston American, No. 275 Devonshire Street:
My solution to Proverb Puzzle No. 59 is
....
....
....
....
My Name is ....
Address ....
Town .... State ....

Hold all answers until you have the entire set. No answers will be considered if sent in before the publication of the last picture.

Those who live outside of Boston have exactly the same chance of winning a prize as those who live in the city.

Time of entry makes absolutely no difference. No answers are to be sent in until after the last puzzle picture has been published. And then there will be a period of grace in which contestants can deliver their solutions at the Contest Department.

Why not order a set now of the back numbers to date and make a race for these magnificent prizes?

It is the easiest thing in the world to enter. You don't have to send in your name or be nominated, or promise anything whatever. You are a contestant in full standing the minute you begin to solve a puzzle picture.

Can you tell what proverb it represents? Of course you can.

Now order the back numbers and you will find that you will have more than plenty of time to have your full sets solved before the last picture appears.

CONTESTANTS, NOTICE!

Any contestant who finds that the pages of his or her PROVERB BOOK are incorrectly numbered, or in whose book the proverbs do not run in alphabetical order, viz: all the a's not together, all the b's not together, etc., etc., is hereby notified to return same without delay to the Contest Department, 275 Devonshire Street, and a correct book will be forwarded.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

THE BOSTON AMERICAN PROVERB CONTEST is a contest of skill and judgment. Prizes to the amount of $10,000 will be given absolutely free by the Boston American to the winners. Every one living in New England, irrespective of age, is eligible to enter this contest.

Each set of answers must contain only one answer to each picture, but each person is entitled to send in three complete sets of answers.

The answers to the puzzle pictures may be sent in writing in longhand, either with pen or pencil; they may be written on the typewriter or may be printed in any manner to suit the fancy of the contestant.

Participation in any other contest now being run or which may be run by the American will not debar any one from entering the contest.

Each contestant or any or all members of the family will be allowed to submit one, two or three sets of answers, but each set must contain only one answer to each picture. Each set will be considered separately, but no contestant can win more than one prize. All employes of the American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

In case there are no complete lists of correct answers, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct solutions. In case of a tie, award will be made on the basis of neatness and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied contestants will receive similar prizes.

Do not send your answers now. Keep them from day to day and at the end of the contest arrange them in numerical order and then send them all in at one time.

Under no circumstances should contestants begin to send in their answers now, as any answers sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered.

Time will not be a factor in awarding the prizes. The first answers sent in after the contest closes will stand no better chance of winning a prize than the last answers submitted.

All answers must be delivered at the BOSTON AMERICAN CONTEST HEADQUARTERS, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., either by mail or in person, within the specified time limit. It is contemplated to give contestants ten days to two weeks after the close of the contest to prepare their answers, so that they can be sent in altogether at one time.

The American will not be responsible for the receipt of any answers unless sent by registered mail and addressed to "PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass."

In case contestants desire further information they should address their questions to PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

There will be seventy-five puzzle pictures in the series used in the contest. The solutions of these pictures may be sent in on the coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday American, or may be written on separate slips of paper. The use of the coupon is desirable, but not necessary.

The Editor of the PROVERB CONTEST reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that he may deem necessary for properly conducting the contest, and his decision on any question which may arise will be absolutely final.

NICKERSON CASE HUNT IN BOSTON

Coroner Eugene H. Lincoln of Providence declared today that he is trying to locate four persons who he expects will prove important witnesses at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Lilly C. Nickerson of Jamaica Plain, whose body was washed ashore at Little Compton, R. I., July 27, one week after she mysteriously disappeared from the Joy line steamer Georgia.

These people occupied staterooms near that of Mrs. Nickerson and it is believed they either heard or saw something that will tend to clear up the mystery. Coroner Lincoln has the names of these people, but he lacks their addresses. At least one of them, it is thought, lives in Boston. If found, they will be summoned to attend the inquest at Little Compton.

Coroner Lincoln said today that the inquest will probably be resumed tomorrow at Little Compton. When the steamer Georgia reaches Providence in the morning sheriffs will be at the dock to serve summonses on more members of the crew. Purser Robert S. Hamilton, who was on the stand when the inquest adjourned last week, will be ordered to again go to Little Compton to answer more questions.

Boston people who were intimately acquainted with Mrs. Nickerson will probably appear at the inquest on Friday.

Federal authorities are patiently awaiting the finding of the coroner. If it is found that the woman was murdered on the high seas, secret service men will immediately be put to work on the case. Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island is also prepared to offer a reward for the capture of the murderer.

NOW, ALL YOU FANS GET BUSY

Frank Chance's Cubs, champions of the National League last season and hot after that title again, are here for a series of four games with Fred Tenney's Rustlers. Every Boston fan is interested in the Cubs. They have made a wonderful record under the leadership of Chance, having won four pennants and two world's championships in the last five years.

The Cubs are great ball players and they are great drawing cards. All you baseball fans like to see such an aggregation play ball. And if you pay your good money to watch them in their battles with the Rustlers, wouldn't you like to see them, absolutely free of charge, in a series for the championship of the world?

If they are successful in their fight for a flag championship, they will meet Philadelphia or Detroit for the big title, and the Boston AMERICAN is going to be host to ten of you fans on the greatest excursion of the kind ever undertaken. It is going to take you to the series, pay your railroad fare and your hotel bills and provide you with good seats. All this at no cost to yourself.

Are you going to be one of the lucky ones? If you think you would like to see the world's series and no fan is worthy the name who would not like to see it—tell your friends about this great offer. Get them to work in your behalf and you will see your name among the leaders in the AMERICAN'S contest.

Your friends will be glad to help you. They will be "sore" at you if you don't make your wish known to them now, before it is too late. The sooner you start, the better will be your chance for one of the prizes. Remember, there are to be ten of them, ten guests of the Boston AMERICAN, who will be the envy of all their less fortunate brethren.

You cannot hope to be successful in this battle by sitting silent and making no effort. The effort is really nothing. Just clipping a coupon out of the Boston AMERICAN, laying it in some safe place and saving it until you have others to put with it. Tell your friends to save with you, to help you along, and you will be surprised to see how many votes will be credited to your name.

The contest is now in full swing, but it isn't too late to start. The earlier the beginning, the easier will be the task. That's the whole secret!

The Cubs may not win. Pittsburg or New York may be successful. But that makes little difference to you. If you are one of the winners, you are going to see the series, no matter where it is played.

MAINE BOY SHOOTS CHUM BY ACCIDENT

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 16.—Willard Berry, a South Paris boy, shot and killed his chum, Ray H. Thurlow. The shooting was accidental. Berry was extracting a cartridge from a 22-caliber rifle when the cartridge was exploded and the bullet lodged in his companion's brain, killing him instantly. Berry ran half a mile to the nearest telephone to call a physician.

HIGH MASS FOR MINE REGIMENT

To provide for the comfort of the large number of persons expected at the solemn high military mass at Castle Island next Sunday, which will be the closing feature of the encampment of the famous Wilkesbarre Catholic Total Abstinence Regiment there, the Rev. John J. O'Malley, chaplain, has arranged to have the altar set up inside the walls of the fort on the parapet near the guns overlooking the outer harbor, so as to permit all who attend an opportunity of following the priests during the course of the mass.

Father O'Malley will be celebrant of the mass, which will commence at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. Maurice J. O'Connor of St. James' church, Harrison avenue, chaplain general of the Boston Catholic Total Abstinence Union, will be deacon. Father McCormack will be sub-deacon. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. James Casey of Malden.

Salute to Host.

An impressive feature will take place at the elevation of the host. Instead of the customary ringing of a bell a salute will be fired from a gun loaned by the members of the South Boston Yacht club; a bugler will blow one note and the "long roll" will be given by the drummer of the regimental band. The members of the regiment will stand at attention. John F. Cahill of St. Patrick's Society will preside at the organ, and the congregation is invited to join in the singing.

Officers and members of the newly formed Boston Catholic Total Abstinence Regiment will appear in uniform. The mass will be celebrated with the approval of Bishop Anderson. A large number of priests will attend.

Members Enjoy Themselves.

Today is a busy one for the officers and men of the command. They were up bright and early, attended mass, listened to advice by Father O'Malley and Colonel Murphy, took part in company and battalion drills, limbered up at various forms of sports and enjoyed a hearty dinner. A number of the officers and men afterward went on a fishing excursion down by Boston and Highland lights. Others went to the L street baths. Captain Thomas Mahon of Company F is officer of the day.

While the officers of the regiment are being entertained at St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society, No. 431 Dudley street, Roxbury, this evening, the men will enjoy themselves as guests of St. Joseph's Total Abstinence Society of the West End at a trolley excursion party from Boston to Arlington Heights. A stop will be made for a dance at the Arlington Town Hall. The band of the regiment will give a concert in front of St. Patrick's club house at 8 p. m.

Tomorrow night the women of St. Theresa's Total Abstinence Society and the men of St. Valentine's Society will tender the regiment a reception in Boston College. Speeches will be made by the officers and several of the Jesuit fathers attached to the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

BOSTON HUNT FOR SLAYER

The Boston police spread out a dragnet to-day to find and arrest Bliss W. Darrah, whom the Bedford police charge stabbed his wife to death on a farm in that town. A man answering Darrah's description was seen running toward a Boston-bound car in Bedford, and street car officials at Arlington Heights declare they saw the same man transfer from a Lexington car and run for one bound to the Sullivan Square terminal of the elevated.

It was learned from Darrah's friends that he had made arrangements to ship on a steamer out of Boston and the waterfront was closely watched to-day by a detail of policemen. Although Chief of Police Kelley of Bedford believes Darrah is in Boston, a search was kept up in the Bedford woods by policemen and citizens. The police of surrounding towns were also notified to be on the lookout.

WILEY HITS AT HIS ACCUSERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—That Solicitor McCabe, though not a chemist, was the real head of the pure food and drug board was brought out in the hearing to-day before the House committee investigating the Wiley-McCabe feud in the Department of Agriculture.

Wiley, chief chemist of the government and central figure in the controversy, took the stand in his own defence and in a few minutes convinced the committee that McCabe ran the pure food and drug board to suit himself, always with a hostile attitude toward Wiley.

After giving a list of his various decrees and stating that he had been chief government chemist since 1883, Dr. Wiley began his story of the enforcement of the pure food and drug laws. The enforcement of these laws he said had been bitterly fought for years by adulterators of food and drugs.

Dr. Wiley told the committee of the differences in the board of food and drug inspection which formerly voted whether there should be prosecutions in cases where the law had been violated. In a majority of cases his opinion was voted down by Solicitor McCabe and Dr. Dunlap, the other members of the board.

McCabe Not a Chemist.

"Were you usually sustained by the board?" asked Representative Floyd.

"Not usually, only in about one-third of the cases," replied Dr. Wiley.

"When you voted one way and Dr. Dunlap another who decided the matter? "Solicitor McCabe."

Asked if McCabe was a chemist Wiley replied "not to my knowledge."

Dr. Wiley said that McCabe had voted with him and against Dunlap in only one instance out of about fifteen hundred. This was a case concerning labelling of rye whiskey.

"If you and Dunlap voted together on a case and McCabe voted differently what did Dunlap do?" asked Representative Floyd.

"Dunlap changed his opinion to agree with McCabe in about 100 cases that I remember."

This line of testimony was to show that McCabe and Dunlap have always opposed Dr. Wiley's efforts to enforce the pure food laws. These two men also conceived the charges against Dr. Wiley that he had technically violated the law in the employment of Dr. Rusby.

Working for Pure Food.

"Did you take part in getting the pure food act passed, asked Mr. Floyd."

"A very active part, beginning as a student in Berlin," replied the witness. "I worked with the Prussian authorities and in 1883 printed my first bulletin on food adulteration. I took an active part in food congresses, and before congressional committees.

"There was constant opposition by makers of adulterated and misbranded foods. The bureau examines samples to decide if they are misbranded or adulterated and whether they contain deleterious ingredients. These are questions of scientific inquiry.

"My findings were at first certified to the Secretary of Agriculture. Perhaps interested are allowed hearings and if the decision be sustained the case is certified to the proper district attorney for prosecution.

"This was the original practice. Then came the board of food and drug inspection of Wiley, Dunlap and McCabe. It hears appeals, as a whole or through some member of the bureau."

F. J. MACLEOD IS CONFIRMED

Frederick J. Macleod was confirmed to-day by the Governor's Council as a member of the Board of Railroad Commissioners. When the board meets to organize it is believed Macleod will be elected chairman, the position to which Governor Foss named him.

Attorney General Swift handed down a decision to-day to the effect that it would be doubtful if the confirmation of any person as chairman of the board would be legal as that is a position generally left to the board to fill.

In accordance with this decision of the Attorney General, the council refused to confirm Macleod as chairman, but did confirm him as a member of the board. He was immediately sworn in by Acting Governor Frothingham and congratulated by the council and a few friends.

POPE FAILS TO GAIN STRENGTH

ROME, Aug. 16.—More optimistic reports issued by the physicians of Pope Pius to-day failed to relieve the anxiety that is felt over his illness. It was stated that he had rested comfortably at times during the night and that the fever was slightly decreasing. There has been no gain in the strength of the pontiff, however, and it is this fact that is causing the greatest alarm, as hitherto he has rallied immediately after a severe sickness.

To-day His Holiness was permitted to receive visitors.

WAR TALK ABSURD, SAYS BERESFORD

NEW YORK, Aug 16.—There are difficulties between England and Germany, but there is no reason to think they cannot be settled without war.

"War is always lamentable. Any idea of war between England and Germany is ridiculous. I give you my word for it that all difficulties between the two countries will be settled by diplomatic negotiations." This was the statement of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, formerly commander of the British fleet, who arrived in New York on the White Star liner Olympic.

HOW THE JAPANESE ALWAYS REMAIN SLENDER

Prominent Scientist and Traveller Discovers Long-Sought Secret

Reduces His Weight 100 Pounds

No Need to Remain Fat Now

How to reduce fat one pound a day and then always remain slim. No drugs, medicines, starvation diet, exercising or apparatus used. Finds simple home treatment works wonders.

On returning from a recent trip Dr. F. Turner, the physician, scientist and traveller, who has won fame and world-wide renown through his writings and scientific researches, accorded an interview to press representatives, who were astounded by his loss of more than 100 pounds of excessive fat since they last saw him. They found it difficult indeed to recognize in the slender, muscular and perfectly proportioned form of Dr. Turner to-day the same man whom only a few months ago they knew as a semi-invalid so enormously fat that he could hardly walk.

When questioned concerning his health and the remarkable change in his appearance, Dr. Turner said that neither illness, medicines, starvation dieting, nor strenuous exercise had caused him to lose so much excess weight. In fact, he said that fatty degeneration had eaten into his vital organs to such an extent that it would have been foolhardy to even attempt the usual methods of reduction, and he was forced to seek other means of escape from his former terrible condition.

On being questioned further the Doctor said: "When I began to feel the stuffy, cramped feeling inside, which, as a physician, I recognized as the first tell-tale symptom of fatty degeneration, and when my heart pounded and throbbed at times so it shook my whole body and seemed about to burst, I knew from these warnings that the end was approaching very rapidly, although the examining physician of a large Life Insurance Company, when refusing point blank to accept me as a risk, had already told me I was likely to drop dead any minute. I tried every means of reduction known to medical science, but without the slightest relief. I then became desperate and began to use all the advertised treatments I had ever heard of. These not only failed to help me, but they did considerable harm, one nearly causing my death on account of the powerful drugs it contained. Although a physician, I am strongly opposed to the use of drugs in treating Obesity. I have never known a case where they did anything but harm when used for this purpose. There are also treatments put on the market by persons who are without a physician's training, and I firmly believe that if I had continued one or two of the methods recommended by these ignorant so-called 'specialists' I would now be in my grave.

"My discovery came about in this way: When seeking data for some literary work, I found a reference to the manner in which the Japanese were said to easily overcome any tendency to take on superfluous flesh. I knew that the Japs are comparatively heavy eaters, and that their diet consists largely of rice, the most starchy and therefore most fat-forming of all grains. I had often wondered why, in spite of these facts, the Japanese, both men and women, always present such a slender, trim, neat appearance. After having long talks with several native authorities in such matters, I determined to give this Japanese method a short trial, and I was fairly startled to behold the wonderful change it made in my appearance, and the improvement in my health that was noticeable from the very first. My fat began to vanish at the rate of one pound a day, sometimes more. I knew I had at last discovered the secret that had been vainly sought for years, and I continued the treatment until I had lost more than 100 pounds in weight. I became stronger with every pound I lost, and soon regained all my old-time vigor of both body and mind. It made me feel 20 years younger to be rid of all the fat that had formed inside and outside my body. After discontinuing the treatment and keeping a careful record of my weight for more than two months I was delighted to find that reduction was permanent, nor had my fat showed the slightest tendency to return since then."

"Can you imagine my ecstasy of joy and inexpressible relief, the tremendous load that was lifted from my mind, when after all my suffering I discovered almost by accident this secret method that enabled me to rid myself of 100 pounds of fat, and which transformed me from a hopeless, helpless wreck into a perfect specimen of physical manhood again. I have now been gladly accepted by the same large insurance Company that previously rejected me."

Dr. Turner then went on to explain the treatment he discovered, and while anyone must admit that it is a logical method and undoubtedly effective to a wonderful degree, yet it is so simple that even a child can understand it and obtain highly satisfactory results. Surely no stout person need any longer feel that he or she must remain fat now. Lack of space prevents a full description of the entire method here, but Dr. Turner has described it in an extremely interesting little booklet entitled, "How I Reduced My Weight 100 Pounds," and by special arrangement with the Doctor these booklets, while they last, will be sent, in plain wrapping, to those of our stout readers who are sufficiently interested to send eight cents in stamps.

Dr. Turner makes no pretentions to be a philanthropist, nor does he claim to give something for nothing, but this system that he has discovered is so simple we find that it can easily be described in the small booklet costing only a few cents, which he has written for the benefit of those who desire further information about the method. The price, eight cents, although very low, covers cost of the book, postage, etc. and enough more to pay the Doctor for his trouble, as he sends out many thousands of them. We are told that he still has about 1000 left, and when these are gone may not have any more printed for some time, as he is planning another long trip, and will probably have no time to give the matter attention again until he returns. The Doctor's address is F. Turner, M. D., Suite 744 D, Clark Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y. and any requests sent there during the next few days will be given prompt attention. We urgently advise all of our stout readers to obtain this wonderful book and begin reducing weight immediately, as such a chance as this may never present itself again.

CHICAGO CUBS OPEN
FOUR-GAME SERIES
WITH THE RUSTLERS

CUBS HERE FOR FOUR GAMES WITH RUSTLERS

By R. W. LARDNER.

Almost satisfied with their success against Brooklyn, the Rustlers will open a series of four games with the Cubs this afternoon. The champions are on hand for the last time this season.

To date, they have beaten Tenney's men every game but one. But the team they had such an easy time defeating was a weak aggregation compared with the bunch now representing Boston in the National League.

The Rustlers are confident that they can take two of the four games, and such a record should be hailed with delight by all the fans.

Buster Brown, who is going at a nice clip now, will probably face the Cubs in the opening game. He is likely to be opposed by Harry McIntire, although Fred Toney may get a chance.

You know the Cubs are champions of the league and are after a renewal of that title. They also have an idea that they can regain the world's championship if they get a chance to play for it.

Their chance depends largely on what they do in the East this trip. It is their last visit of the season to this part of the country. As a rule they have been successful against three of the four teams hereabouts. But they haven't been able to accomplish much against the Brooklyn Dodgers, who are more for the Rustlers than any of the other [illegible].

Mr. Chance is figuring on winning, or being in taking at least three of the four games. He isn't much afraid of the New York and Philadelphia [illegible], but probably will be satisfied with even breaks in these two cities. The series in Brooklyn is his [illegible] of concern. For some reason or other the Chicago pitchers are generally unable to fool Bill Dahlen's batsmen.

BATTING ORDER.

Ruelbach Not at His Best.

Ed Reulbach used to "kill" the men on the Ebbets gang, but Edward isn't going at his best. The Brooklyn sluggers seem to be full of the germs of victory. Dahlen's hurlers are [illegible], but they get into the Cubs' blood and [illegible] the deuce with control. If Reulbach gets into one of his winning streaks before next week, the Cubs may upset the dope and take a couple of falls out of the Dodgers. Such an event would mean more to them than a successful Eastern trip, unless they should fall down where they don't expect to.

The Cubs still consider Pittsburg their most dangerous rival. Of course the Pirates are making an Eastern trip too, and a lot depends on the outcome of it. Both teams will be going through most of next month, while the Giants, also contenders, will be touring the West. So New York has the advantage now, but Pittsburg and Chicago will share it later. It is perfectly natural that the Cubs are pulling for success in the East for themselves and disaster for the Pirates, and that the Pirates are hoping just the other way.

The champions are in better shape for a set of tough arguments than they have been previously this year. This is because Leonard Cole and Lew Richie are really pitching. In his list of recent accomplishments, Lew has clever victories over New York and St. Louis and the king has been unbeatable when control was with him. Mordecai Brown is better than he was last year and Harry McIntire ditto. Toney and Richie have shown more class than most youngsters and Ed Reulbach is about due for one of his unbeatable spells.

Cubs Have the Class.

There is no doubt that the Cub pitchers at the present moment are an improvement over the staff that faced the Athletics last Fall. They are not as good yet as Chance would like to have them, but he has hopes that they will be able to round to in time for the big show, if his team is called on to take part in it. If they are in shape the Chicagoans will not be easy for the champions of the American League and the last year's verdict is likely to be reversed, for the Cubs don't have to tip their hats to anybody when it comes to all-around class.

It's time for Arthur Hofman to begin hitting. Artie was up among the leaders when last year's records appeared, and he's a natural .300 hitter if ever one lived. But for some reason he is unable to strike his gait. He is now loitering down around the .260 mark and he doesn't feel one bit at home there. The others are clouting, however, and no one is doing much worrying about Artie's slump, which can't be anything but temporary.

Schulte Stinging the Ball.

The gentleman who is punishing the ball hardest for the champs is Frank Schulte. His present mark is in the neighborhood of .325, and his collection includes seventeen home-run drives. His mates say that he really has made eighteen, but that one was taken from him by an error of New York's official scorer. Anyhow, with seventeen to his credit, he is only eight shy of the record made by Buck Freeman in 1899. If he can find the fence three or four times before the club starts west again, he will stand a good show of tying Buck's high mark.

The Rustlers feel toward the Cubs as the Red Sox felt toward Detroit before the Tigers paid their last visit here. The season's series so far is in favor of Chicago by a lopsided score. It could be made to look much better if only the Rustlers could do what the Red Sox did. One thing is sure—the team that faces the champions today has more right to expect victories than the one the Cubs were downing so easily, earlier in the season.

HOGG TO RUSTLERS.

The purchase of the very promising pitcher, C. Bradley Hogg, of the Haverhill Club, is announced by the Boston Nationals. Hogg has won eight out of ten games. He will report to the Boston club at the end of the New England league season.

MORAN TO RACE STAR SPRINTERS

Jimmy Moran, the acknowledged champion pursuit rider of the world, is up against the real thing when he meets Alfred Goullette, the sensational Australian sprinter at the Revere Cycle Track next Saturday evening in a special three-heat match race.

Moran has not been doing any sprint riding the past season, but has been following the motors across the pond, and was a big hit. He was forced to quit owing to injuries, and as soon as he recovered he sailed for home.

The very day he landed he was handed a telegram from Alfred Goullette, challenging him to a special three-heat race, to be decided at the Revere Cycle Track, inside of a week. Moran accepted the defi, and hopes to repeat his performance of last season, when he defeated the Australian in two straight heats of a special match race at the beach oval.

Moran, in fact, is the one American rider that has been able to lower the colors of the Australian, and the latter, ever since, has been anxious to get a return match. The men will first ride a one-mile sprint, followed by a five-mile motor-pace race and an unlimited pursuit race.

This event is the one which will decide the match, as the Australian is favored in the sprint, while Moran is given the motor pace race. The pursuit race should be one that will be worth going some distance to see.

URGES PIRATES TO FORGET STANDING

PITTSBURG, Aug. 16.—"Don't pay any attention to the daily dope about the standing of the clubs," Fred Clarke told his Pittsburg players the other day. "October is a long way off. We may have many ups and downs before the finish, and it is not going to help our prospects to bother about a set-back or to gloat over any gain. Just peg away every day until the last man is out in the last inning; then if some other club finishes ahead of us next October, we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that we played out our string."

YANKEES BUY PITCHER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The New York American Baseball Club has purchased the release of Pitcher Hardin of the Fort Wayne, Ind., club. Hardin has won eleven out of the last twelve games he has pitched.

RED SOX SPEND DAY ON TRAIN

The Red Sox are today en route for Detroit, where they begin a series of games, three in number, to-morrow with the Tigers. The Western trip is a short one, for after leaving Detroit the Red Sox play the Naps Sunday and then have Monday open, with Tuesday for a second game. So it leaves but two games this time to be played in four days.

The first scheduled game at St. Louis is August 24. The team will remain in Cleveland on the off day, as planned at present, delaying the arrival in the land of heat until the last minute.

Three games with the Browns follow and then three with the White Sox, embracing a Sunday date.

Manager Donovan has cut his squad three men. McHale, Gunning and Purtell were sent back to Boston. This leaves seven pitchers for the trip and they are seven of the best available in the bunch.

It was just as well for all concerned that the game in Philadelphia yesterday was postponed. The Red Sox have certainly put a crimp in both Detroits and Athletics, where these clubs have expected a clean-up. The world's champions were not any too strong for pitchers, nor was Boston for that matter. Patsy had thought to work Joe Wood, but he has not been feeling very well since he came to Philadelphia and would not have been sent against the Mackmen. Ray Collins has complained of a lame arm for a couple of days, so that would have passed him up. Larry Pape was next choice and he was ready to go the limit.

CINCINNATI MEN WANT EASTERN CLUB

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—Sol and Harry Gilsey, who are interested in the Cincinnati Shamrocks, a semi-professional baseball team, have left for New York to confer with the owner of a club in the Eastern League with a view to buying a controlling interest. Harry Gilsey admitted the purpose of his trip, but refused to divulge the name of the club. He also said several Cincinnati business men were willing to put up the capital.

The Newark club of the Eastern League is known to be for sale. Iron Man McGinnity, after making it a big paying proposition, has seen it go to pieces on his hands, and has announced that he is ready to sell.

O'TOOLE NOW WITH PITTSBURG PIRATES

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 16.—Martin O'Toole, the new twirler for the Pittsburg ball team, purchased from St. Paul for $22,500, has arrived in the city, to the great relief of fandom. O'Toole expressed the feeling that "it was just like coming back home, for I was born in Pittsburg."

Catcher Kelly, who has been O'Toole's battery partner on the St. Paul team, and who has also been purchased by Pittsburg, is not expected to come here until after the close of the American Association season, although it is possible he may report within a week or two.

FIREMEN TO CLASH.

There promises to be some gay doings at the American League grounds when the baseball teams representing the Boston firemen and Division 5 of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company clash to settle supremacy.

'OLD CY' YOUNG LET GO BY NAPS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—After pitching big league baseball for twenty-two years, Cy Young, the most famous pitcher the game of baseball has ever known, one of the two modern players who had the honor of pitching a game in which not one of his opponents reached first base, has been granted his unconditional release by the Cleveland club. It was the first time during his career as a baseball player that he had drawn an outright release.

"I have not a kick coming," said Cy. "I have been treated finely by the Cleveland club and the patrons of the game. I am sorry, of course, that things did not break so I could have kept on in Cleveland to the end of my baseball career, but that was impossible under the circumstances. But I am not through with baseball.

"I am in good condition and my arm is as strong as it ever was. I shall stick to baseball, as I feel there are a few years of good pitching in the old whip. None of that 'back to the farm' in mine. I am going to stay right here until I locate elsewhere, working out with the boys every day and keeping in condition."

Asked if he would invest some of his money in a minor league club, Cy replied: "Not just yet. I am content to go on pitching for a few years more. Still, if something good presents itself, there is no telling just what I might do. But I feel that if I can get the breaks of luck, I could start right off with some other big league club and pitch winning ball. I have pitched some good games this year, which shows that I have not lost all my skill by a long ways."

Young made his 1911 debut in June at Washington, where he also won his 500th big league game a year ago. He next pitched at Boston and again he won.

Then came a defeat, but when assigned to pitch against Washington at League Park a month ago he all but scored a shut-out. That was his last victory. Since that time he has failed to show the ability to puzzle the opposing batsmen.

In releasing Denton Tecumseh ("Cy") Young, Cleveland parts with the only pitcher who has ever won 500 games. Christy Matthewson is the only other one who has ever won over 250 games, and his days as a winning pitcher seem to be waning. In fact while baseball will go on to the end of time, it is doubtful if there ever will be another Cy Young, a man who can pitch big league baseball for twenty-two years or until he is forty-five years of age or over.

DAFFYDIL DAYS; TRY YOUR LUCK

These may be dog days, but they are Daffydil Days, too. Witness the mail sacks full of daffydils which are being sent in daily to the AMERICAN'S Daffydil Contest.

Some of the "daffys" are corkers, too, bright and snappy. They show that when the great American public tries seriously to be funny, it pulls off a pretty good trick. Not all the humorists in the world are members of the American Press Humorists' Association, clever as those fun-writers are.

Try it yourself. Send in some daffydils. You may win some of the $50 cash prize money. Or you may win one of Tad's "Daffydil Books."

Here Are a Few.

Here are sample daffydils received today:

If President Taft goes to the North Shore to spend his vacation, where does Admiral Togo?
T. J. Kelley, No. 383 Washington street, Boston.

If Poker is a game of cards, is Liverpool?
H. Johnson, No. 108 Central street, Leominster.

A pen can be pushed but a pencil must be lead.
Edwin J. Reed, No. 45 Rathburn street, Woonsocket, R. I.

If Joe Wood Ty Cobb for the batting honors, how could Purtell?
Forrest E. Black, No. 13 Marlboro Road, Derry, N. H.

If John D. Rockefeller is worth two hundred millions, how much is Alice Longworth?
Bessie H. Moore, No. 96 Tremont street, New Bedford.

If a baby cried, would ice cream?
Joseph Glasher, No. 16 Dorchester street, South Boston.

If Mayor Fitz said "Europe Martin on the Sweet Adeline, would they tie Lomasney's?
Thomas W. Enright, Amesbury, Mass.

If the crowd sat, would the grandstand?
John Lee, P. O. box 2786, Boston.

If gas stock earns millions a year, what does lantern?
G. M. Frame, No. 221 Harvard street, Brookline, Mass.

If Jack Johnson weighs more than 200 pounds, how much does Broadway?
Joseph Lainer, No. 73 Green street, Worcester, Mass.

Prizes for Daffydillers.

The prizes will be cash and Daffydil Books. There will be $50 in cash for the writers of the best daffydils of the week. Other prizes for some of the next best daffydils will consist of copies of "Tad's" famous "Daffydil Book," which contains many of that clever writer's best daffydils.

The rules of the Daffydil Contest are as follows:

Mail your daffydils to the Daffydil Editor, Boston AMERICAN, P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass.

Write on one side of the paper only.

Sign your full name and address.

The best daffydils sent in during the week, up to Thursday, will be published in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The writers of the daffydils published in the Sunday AMERICAN will be awarded prizes.

Every daffydil published in the Sunday AMERICAN will draw a prize, either cash or book.

Ten sample daffydils will be published each week day. But those printed as samples in the Daily AMERICAN will not necessarily win prizes. Only those selected for the Sunday AMERICAN will be prize winners.

VITA II. LAUNCHED; TO MEET BRITISH BOATS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Vita II., one of the greyhounds of the water, which will probably meet the British challengers for the British International Cup in the motor boat races, September 4-6, on Huntington Bay, has been launched at Bayonne. The vessel is built of mahogany, equipped with two 300-horsepower engines, and designed for a speed of fifty miles an hour or more. She will be tested to-day and will participate in the elimination trials to be held August 30 and 31 and September 1.

WORCESTER PLAYER IS BADLY INJURED

BROCKTON, Aug. 16.—Walter Crum, center fielder of the Worcester team, may not play again this season as result of an injury sustained in his game here Tuesday. In sliding into second base in the sixth inning he injured his right ankle and was unable to continue; it was discovered that the ligaments had been torn. Crum was sent back to Worcester and an X-ray examination will be made.

BEST RUNNERS IN MARATHON

The announcement of a big International Marathon race for the world's championship, to be held at Rocky Point next Sunday, is creating much talk among Marathon fans not only in Rhode Island, but in Boston. All the cleverest quarter-century men are in training for the event and it promises to be one of the most spectacular foot races of the year.

Thure Johanson of Sweden, the holder of three world's records, will be on hand, and will do his utmost to again defeat Jim Crowley, the former holder of the world's record for the Marathon, and the other entrants. Both runners are in fine shape and looking eagerly forward to the contest.

Pat Dineen, who has just returned from Indianapolis, where he captured the six-day race and the diamond medal, is also entered. Dineen is forty-four years old, one of the best known runners in the country and feels confident that he can defeat the younger racers who will be pitted against him.

Italy will be represented by F. Panzler and Alessio Vambra, who are well known as the best men from that country. Vambra holds the championship of the United States Army, which he recently joined, being stationed at Fort McKinley, Portland, Me. Panzler is a rugged Italian lad who since he started to tour the United States has beaten many of the best in the country and is backed solidly by all the Italian population of Rhode Island.

John Prouty, who has run before at Providence, finishing second to Dineen, when he won the first Marathon at Rocky Point, will also compete. Mike Morris, the New England champion, is a big favorite with the Boston delegation who will attend the race.

Jim Crowley is expected to run as never before to retrieve his laurels lost to Johanson in their recent race at New York, when Johanson broke the world's record. Harry Prime of England, known as the British flyer, is also entered and he is confident of landing first place.

Teams from New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburg in the East, and Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, Denver and Indianapolis, from the West, will compete.

NO SCORE CARDS IN N. H. SALOONS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 16.—The New Hampshire Board of License Commissioners furnished another surprise to liquor dealers when they issued orders the saloon keepers must remove all the results of baseball games of the American and National Leagues. The order is said to be the result of owners of saloons allowing boys to enter the barrooms to read the bulletins.

COFFROTH "HED UP" ON COAST

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—We hear on pretty good authority that the reason there has been no fight carded for Frisco in August is because Jim Coffroth cannot get a license from the present administration.

The trouble is, it seems, about politics. Coffroth leased his club out to a firm of advertisers, who placarded the joint with posters and signs of one of the local parties, ignoring certain officials who are in now and ready to serve again. The officials, in power now, noticed the slight and don't even give Coffroth the [illegible] thing on the street any more.

Frisco is a queer place regarding fights and permits. Only last month the supervisors refused to hand a license to a club if they put Billy Papke on. They agreed to get some one else and the permit was granted. If you don't like a politician's aunt or great-grandfather out there, and he has the power to knock your game, you are out.

A fight promoter, to get along, should marry into the political family, buy pearls for the sons, candy for the daughters and take the rest of the family motoring.

Is it any wonder that Coffroth's hair is turning gray?

LANGFORD HAS SOFT PICKING IN O'BRIEN

By ED CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—They can't come back. This inexorable law of the prize ring claimed another foolish victim at the Twentieth Century A. C. when Philadelphia Jack O'Brien tried to overcome the rigid rules. After four rounds and one minute of fighting—real hard fighting—the one-time pride of Philadelphia lay prone on the ropes. Glassy-eyed, nerve-wrecked he lay there, insensible to all.

Referee Charley White, who has seen them all come and go, raised his hand and it was over. Ten feet away, like a gorilla gloating over a crushed carcass, stood Sam Langford. It was only one more unfortunate added to his many score. For the obsequies of the last member of the veteran division it was a fitting occasion. They were all there to wish John O'Brien bon voyage.

While the desperate, pallid-looking fighter sparred his best and tried to get away from his persistent black conqueror, the thousands who were jammed into the clubhouse gasped. Under the glare of the lights overhanging the ring the scene depicted a poor wounded mouse trying to escape the paw of a cat with all avenues of escape cut off.

From corner to corner the white man sped. But the grinning colored opponent was right on his trail. And when nature was entirely exhausted the black's left hand shot through the air, landed squarely on O'Brien's jaw and the white fell. There was no need of a count. It would have been impossible for O'Brien to continue without being severely hurt.

Charley White saw that all was over and waved Langford to his corner. The negro hopped over the ropes, laughing at his friends scattered throughout the audience. His delight did not take on the dismay and sorrow of his rival. For that left brought O'Brien to his grave in the prize ring.

On O'Brien's tombstone can be engraved "He did his best."

But that was not half good enough. Langford belongs to the type that can take a beating and come back for more. O'Brien was a member of that division years ago. "Years ago" explains the story.

O'Brien Downed Four Times.

During the short but exciting bout O'Brien "bit the dust" four times. A left to the body sent him to his knees a minute after the first round started. That same pitiless left dropped him twice in the third. And it put him out for good in the fifth.

There never was a time that the white man figured to beat his opponent. The instant he went down in the opening period it satisfied all that the slaughter had only started. But gameness when defeat was staring at him only made the former star fight the harder. He rained blows galore upon Langford, but they were as successful as the blows of a child. When the fight had really got under way, Langford grinned every time O'Brien landed. The hands that sent Bob Fitzsimmons to defeat lack their old strength.

Took a Terrible Lacing.

In his farewell to the ring O'Brien took a terrible lacing. The blows of the black man's gloves carried awful stings. And in addition to the stings they gradually sapped up all of the strength in O'Brien's body. Despite this grueling punishment, the white man staggered all over the ring and tried to drive away his tormenter. His arms were flashed through the smoke-laden atmosphere, but when they found a spot they simply rested.

When the men stepped back to their corners after White had given them final orders the vast crowd drew a long breath, for they had a premonition of what was coming.

Jack came for the second using all his great boxing skill to war off his opponent. He smashed over a right to the face, followed by his left. But the blows lacked force. Langford kept feinting, waiting for O'Brien to raise his guard. But O'Brien guessed his antagonist's motives and guarded his body carefully. Langford swiftly shot his left through the air, but missed. This was a blow that carried his full strength behind, and all hands breathed easier when it missed. O'Brien then got over a right to the chin and left to the body and then fell into a clinch. That was a terrible error, for when he held the blackman in chancery Langford worked his left free and used it tellingly.

Langford hit O'Brien twice in the stomach and O'Brien backed away. The white man staggered, for these wallops had almost bent him in two. Langford then stood off and shot his left to O'Brien's nose, bringing the claret. O'Brien made a flying leap at his man and landed lightly. Langford simply smiled. Just as the bell tinkled O'Brien hit Langford on the jaw with a right, but received a smashing left in return.

The bell clanged. O'Brien danced out of his corner with a smile. Bang went his right to Langford's jaw, immediately followed by a left that hit the same spot. Like a coal-black fiend Sam shot out his left. The blow caught O'Brien in the pit of the stomach and he dropped. In a flash O'Brien was up, fighting like fury. Swish. His right flew through the air and hit Langford on the mouth. A slight trickle came from the negro's mouth. O'Brien had the credit of first blood.

Body Blows were Telling.

It was an empty honor, drawing first blood, for Langford dashed two lefts to the face, and the white man backed up. The body blows were telling on O'Brien. The clever boxer was missing and holding. Two more lefts cracked against O'Brien's jaw, but he managed to get his right to the body and, like a lightning flash, sent it to the face. A left to the face landed on Langford, and the bell rang.

O'Brien went to his corner, but not with any sense of victory. He had felt Langford's terrible strength and realized Sam's enormous power.

Langford took matters easy in this session and tried to obtain an opening. But the Philadelphia fighter was on his guard and managed to weather the storm.

As the men sparred off in the third, Langford stepped in and started to really fight. His right found a resting place on O'Brien's head and his cruel left went to the body. O'Brien staggered and then fell to the canvas. As Referee White rushed over to toll off the seconds Langford strolled over to another part of the ring and only knew his man was back again in the game when White motioned him to continue.

O'Brien reeled around and held at every opportunity. In the clinches that followed Langford worked short arm blows to the body which made O'Brien fairly gasp. While O'Brien fairly staggered around, Langford whipped his left to the stomach once more, and O'Brien dropped. This time Jack rested on his knee until nine was counted. Just as Langford got ready to end matters the bell rang. O'Brien staggered to his corner.

A Pitiable Exhibition.

The fourth was simply a pitiable exhibition to overcome nature and fate. Langford stepped around O'Brien like a tiger at wounded prey. His left would shoot out and hit the white man in the face, and then that ceaseless arm would go to the body. O'Brien grunted every time he made an effort to hit.

In an effort to hit the darky O'Brien, the wisp O'Brien, left an opening and the black's left struck him in the stomach. O'Brien's cry of anguish horrified the spectators, for it sounded like a death cry. Langford then stepped in and administered severe body punishment. O'Brien, however, was on his feet, staggering around when the bell sent him to his corner.

The fifth round found many spectators leaving the hall. Langford went right after his man, trying to beat him about the body. There was a clinch. O'Brien was pushed away and then came the left that meant the real downfall of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, one of the greatest fighters of his day. With him went individual supremacy and the light heavyweight championship. But they went out in a blaze of glory fitting for their burial.

An ill omen hung over Jack O'Brien. Before he entered the ring the relics and derelicts of the ring were introduced and applauded. Lanky Bob Fitzsimmons made his bow and a little speech in which he remarked that he was not thinking of returning to the ring, but if Jim Corbett wanted to erase Carson City from his memory, Bob would give him an opportunity.

Bout by Rounds.

FIRST ROUND—The men wasted very little time in sparring, but got to work quickly. O'Brien found Langford's head and face with rights and lefts repeatedly, but the blows were apparently without force. He made the negro miss frequently throughout the round. Shortly before the bell Langford knocked O'Brien to the ropes with a left to the body, but O'Brien was off his balance at the time. O'Brien round.

SECOND ROUND—They mixed in the middle of the ring and clinched, both holding. O'Brien sent over a sound left uppercut to the jaw and was roundly cheered. Langford landed two light lefts to the head, and O'Brien retaliated with a left to the face. O'Brien's mouth was bleeding, but he was fighting fast, with flashes of his old-time cleverness. The men exchanged rights to the face and Langford landed a damaging right uppercut on O'Brien's face. O'Brien's round.

THIRD ROUND—Langford missed with a short left, but got in a right under O'Brien's jaw. O'Brien went to his knees in a neutral corner from a right to the head, but was up quickly. The Philadelphian, although evidently tiring rapidly, assumed the aggressive and landed a fusillade of right and left straight-arm blows on the negro's face. They then went into a clinch, and Langford hammered O'Brien over the kidneys with a sledgehammer right. The repeated blows evidently hurt O'Brien badly. Langford whipped two rights to the head and cross O'Brien's left. The Philadelphian went down and took the count of eight. Langford's round.

FOURTH ROUND—O'Brien came in with a rush and put light lefts to Langford's face. He followed with a hard right to the chin, one of the best blows he had landed. There was a hard exchange in midring in which O'Brien had all the worst of it. Langford's short rights and lefts to the body wore down the Quaker fighter perceptibly. He came out of the clinch staggering, and made a splendid, although momentary, rally, causing the negro to miss four hard swings, any one of which might have ended the battle there. O'Brien was saved by the bell.

FIFTH ROUND—The spectators began leaving before the opening of the fifth round. O'Brien had his fighting spirit left, and that seemed to be about all. Langford put a hard left to the Philadelphian's head and followed it with another fusillade of kidney blows in a clinch. The negro then shook himself loose and tried a terrific right for the jaw. O'Brien ducked it with a last despairing effort. Langford followed with a sharp left hook to the jaw, and O'Brien went down on his hands and knees. He might possibly have arisen before the count of ten, but it was evident that that was all he could have done, and the referee motioned Langford to his corner and helped the defeated fighter to arise.

'K. O.' BROWN IS NEW SPEED KID

By JACK CONWAY.

"Knockout" Brown is the new champion speed kid. In fact, the little New York Dutchman is a regular West India cyclone when it comes to getting around this old map of ours in record-breaking time.

One day you read about "Knockout" mussing up some gentle lightweight in Northern New York, while the next day you pick up a sport print and therein is vividly described how Mr. Brown almost maimed some self-sacrificing scrapper many miles away from the place of his first fistic encounter. And you wonder way back in the right-hand corner of your think tank whether every fighter in the game is named "Knockout" Brown.

No, dear reader, there is only one fighter by the name of "Knockout" Brown who gets his name in the paper with any regularity, and this particular kid comes from old New York town. Mr. Brown is just now making a great barnstorming trip throughout the East.

"Knockout's" schedule looks more like that of a one-night circus than of a boxer. The New Yorker is pushing in two or three fights every week.

"Careful" Dan at Helm.

Needless to say, the grand tour has been mapped out by that king of wise managers—"Careful" Dan Morgan. The chief object, naturally, is to make money, and the second is to give Brown plenty of advertising. Morgan is confident that "Knockout" will some day wrest the lightweight crown from the grasp of Ad Wolgast, and therefore desires to keep the name of his protege before the public as much as possible.

Last Winter the tow-headed Gothamite won two newspaper decisions from Wolgast. But since his last scrap with the sturdy Cadillac farmer the New York mixer has done little or nothing.

Both Morgan and Brown have absolutely refused to meet Wolgast in a twenty-round bout on the coast, while they have put off other top notchers with one kind of excuse or another.

The other day Matt Wells and his manager pulled off the master stroke of getting Brown to sign articles for a match on August 30, to take place at some New York club. But McDonald, Well's manager, says that it took him five days, five hours and twenty-five minutes before he could get Morgan to affix his John Hancock to the final article.

When "Knockout" gets through with his present schedule he should be willing to talk business with the rest of the big fellows. And if Brown decides to fight, well, I would hate to be the fellow in the other corner. The New Yorker has everything that goes to make up a champion with one exception—experience, but he is getting this every day.

"K. O." Fighting Too Much.

If Morgan knows his business, and I am sure he does, he will cancel about one-half of the engagements he has billed for his charge. One fight with a first-class man would bring greater financial return than a dozen battles with third and fourth raters.

And who ever heard of a prize fighter becoming a Paul Revere or Billy Quest, anyway? So, Danny, get wise and match your boy with the real men of the ring—Ad Wolgast, Matty Baldwin, Freddie Welsh, Packey McFarland, Owen Moran and the rest of the top notchers. And perhaps he will some day land the championship.

Poor "Porky" Flynn. He won't get a chance to put a dent in the reputation of Joe Jeannette, that star heavyweight of the dusky shade, for another long week. The West End bomb hurler was originally scheduled to assassinate Jeannette at the Fairmount Club this evening, but owing to a combination of circumstances the mill has been put over for another week. It may be a good thing for "Porky," too, for the big Jersey City black is going at an awful fast clip just now.

Six more days and we shall have some real fighting in this village. This bout at the armory between "Buck" Crouse of Pittsburg and Billy Berger of Wildwood, N. J., but who used to hang out his shingle down in Smoky City a few years ago, looks to be the real thing. Both men are mixers of the highest order and should keep the house in a rather noisy state while they are performing.

The New York boxing commission is going to appoint the referees in a few days. And we wonder who will be the lucky (?) ones. Unless you pass favorably before the powers that be over in Gotham you cannot act as third man in the ring. But who ever wanted the job anyway? It's a case of legal suicide. Yes, it has even got the umpiring job beaten to a frazzle.

Abe Attell is holding out for $10,000 as his end of the purse for a twenty-round go with Joe Rivers out on the coast. The little wizard is now reported as having fully recovered from the injury to his arm. If this is true, Abe will soon be after the best of them. When in shape they all look alike to the little wonder. Rivers has been showing sensational form of late and is touted as a coming champion. But if he is to win from Attell he will have to fight the most wonderful battle of his career.

ANDERLE WILL TRY FOR LIGHT

Alois Anderle, the veteran long-distance swimmer of the New York Model Yacht Club, will undertake to swim to Boston Light on next Sunday, August 20. This will be the second time that Anderle has started for the light, and he feels confident that with favorable conditions he will reach his goal. It was unfortunate for Anderle that he did not know the harbor on August 29, 1909, when he swam to Boston Light in five hours thirty-eight minutes. This brilliant swim was spoiled when he accidentally touched a sandbar at Nix's Mate. However, that is past, and Anderle, who is now forty-three years of age, will endeavor to reach the light in six hours Sunday. Anderle will leave New York Friday evening, so as to have plenty of time in which to rest before he hits the water below the Charlestown bridge.

NO DECISIONS IN N. Y. BOUTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Every effort will be made by the State Boxing Commission to prevent betting on bouts at clubs. In order to hamper such proceedings the referees will be forbidden for a time to name the winner.

Later, if the betting does not become a dominant factor in the sport, decisions may be allowed. This will be in the nature of an experiment.

[illegible] of the State Boxing Board is in favor of having a corps of referees that will be subject to the commission's control. Each one will be under a license.

In order to prevent any possible collusion between referees and the managers of a boxing club, the commission will name the man who will decide the winners.

"Socks," the best and only official umpire that the league has ever had, returned from his two weeks' vacation at Hogwallow, where he has been working for his aunt on her ranch herding pigs, picking apples and plums and salting cucumbers.

Rumor has it that he is loaded down with money. Although we did not see the roll, we understand that he has six dollars in his kick.

We are going to stick around and see it melt. Joe, the ice cream man down at the corner, is already the possessor of twenty cents of it, that we know of, as we saw "Socks" and Emily Morton beating in that direction after overhearing him invite her to a strawberry extra ice cream soda. Plain strawberry sodas cost only a nickel, but for the extras a gink has to come through with an extra five.

There is supposed to be twice as much ice cream in an extra as in the plain, but we ourselves are always suspicious about this. However, that has nothing to do with the case. If "Socks" wants to blow in his money, it is none of our business, so we will shut up on that score.

We think there will be something doing when "Socks" meets "Boob" Nelson and finds out that the turtle he sent him from the country had been kidnaped. We are just waiting to hear what "Socks" will say when he hears this news.

Although personally we do not think it worth mentioning, we hear that "Socks" and Emily are engaged to be married. We came across a couple of kids yesterday afternoon busily engaged in writing a lot of junk to that effect all over the walls of the houses up and down the street. Luckily there was no policeman around to spoil their work.

As far as it goes the lettering is fine for the size of the kids who did it, but we do not believe in the veracity of it.

We expect to hear a lot of things this afternoon. We always carry plenty of paper and pencils and make notes of all we see or hear. It will all be in to-morrow's paper.

Of course the Wild Cats and Umperiners play again to-morrow. Everybody knows that.

The Bill Clerk

By KENNETT HARRIS

"EXCUSE me, Johnny," said the cashier, timidly, as the bill clerk stretched his arms and then stuck his pen in the rack and pushed the day book to one side.

"Well, what is it?" demanded the bill clerk.

"I want you to pardon me for detaining you, my dear fellow, more particularly as I know twenty minutes is none too many for your ante-luncheon toilette," the cashier continued. "It may seem like officiousness on my part, when in reality it's only friendly solicitude. But your stickpin, Johnny."

"What about it?"

"Just a thought more to the left side," said the cashier. "A couple of millimeters, perhaps. The height seems to me about right, but I think you will find the eastward shift that I suggest an improvement."

The bill clerk's hand went involuntarily to his necktie, but the cashier checked him.

"Not now, old chap," he begged. "Wait until you get to a mirror and do it properly. It's a delicate operation, and while I think of it, there's some violet talcum on the top shelf in the cabinet that I shall be glad to have you use as freely as you wish. Don't make a mistake and get the roach powder."

"You're awful good, considering that violet talcum's mine," said the Bill Clerk.

The Negligee Lock of Hair

"I was wondering whose it was," admitted the cashier. "Use it, anyway, and dont forget to soap that negligee lock of hair that you have been draping over your brow. A little soap will make it hold the curve better. You don't mind my mentioning these little things, do you, Johnny?"

"I'm tickled into hysterics to have you," said the bill clerk. "Will you tell me what you've got on your alleged self-styled mind? It can't be much or it wouldn't stand the strain."

"Suppose I tell you while we're eating lunch," suggested the cashier.

"Is this an invite?" asked the bill clerk.

"Well, I'd like to see her," answered the cashier. "We might make it a Dutch treat, though. I'll compromise on that basis, Johnny, if you're willing or would it be a little awkward for you to have to sit and listen to my gay repartay and watch the growing light of admiration in her eyes? Pretty swift on the come-back, isn't she, Johnny?"

"You might say that," replied the bill clerk.

"I quite imagined she would be," said the cashier. "If a person got too gay, he'd be about due for something calculated to hold him for an indefinite period, or a few well-chosen words of similar import—what?"

"It's within the bounds of possibility," the bill clerk conceded.

"Some capillary confection, no?" hinted the cashier.

"If you wanted to so term it, sure," answered the bill clerk, agreeably.

"Blonde?"

"You are conversing quite audibly," said the bill clerk.

"I suppose she has elbow sleeves with dimples in the elbows," mused the Cashier. "You may have noticed that, when she reached over to adjust the New England boiled in front of you and leaned ever so slightly against your shoulder, yes?"

"I have a sort of an impression of elbow sleeves," confessed the bill clerk.

A Cunningly Cute Picture.

"Cunning little apron, isn't it?" pursued the cashier. "Those dinky pockets, eh? And the bow behind, and the swing of her skirt above her trim little ankles as she trips away with a tray balanced on her pink little fingertips. Johnny, take my tiny, trusting hand in yours and lead me to it."

"You old reprobate," said the bill clerk, fiercely. "Say, I've a notion to do it. But listen, [illegible]: You got it all right up to the apron, only her name is Sam. The apron isn't what you would call starching, nor are Sam's ankles exactly trim. He is innocent of gayety and he wears his hair pompadour as far as it goes and talks out of the corner of his mouth.

"When I take you over there, with the distinct understanding that the check is yours, you will notice red flannel above Sam's dimpled elbows, and a well-defined patch beginning eight inches below the waist line where your fond imagination pictures a bow."

"Then I was mistaken in my surmise?" queried the cashier, with a disappointed air.

"I am afraid you were," said the bill clerk.

"Does Sam like the smell of violet powder?" asked the cashier. "Has he a nose for sweet odors?"

The Cashier Disapopinted.

The bill clerk opened his desk, a sandwich box and his mouth in succession. "He's got a nose that he isn't everlastingly sticking into other people's business," he said, biting into a sandwich. "I brought my lunch down to-day."

"Pardon my unjust suspicion, if you can, Johnny," implored the cashier.

Flag of Truce

IT would be hard to find a more amusing instance of the beggared condition in which soldiers of the field are sometimes found than that given years ago by General Gordon, in an account of various scenes connected with the surrender of Lee's army.

When General Gordon determined to send a flag of truce to General Sheridan he summoned Major Hunter, of his staff, and ordered him to carry a flag of truce forward.

"General, I have no flag of truce," replied Major Hunter.

"Get one," said the General, curtly.

"General," he replied again, "we have no flag of truce at our command."

"Take your handkerchief and put it on a stick, and go forward."

"General, there is no handkerchief in the staff."

"Then, Major, use your shirt."

"You see, General, that we all have on flannel shirts."

At last one man was found who still had a white shirt; a part of it was torn off, and, with this remarkable emblem tied on a stick, the Major went forward toward the enemy's lines.

OF COURSE.

"Every man thinks his town is the finest place on earth."

"We should apply this tendency to our other surroundings in life. It shows that we can all be contented if we want to be."

THE PLACE TO DIE.

"My hero dies in the middle of my latest novel," said the young author.

"That's a grave mistake," replied the editor. "He should not die before the reader does."

Advice About the Skin

In the treatment and cure of eczema and other skin diseases, two conditions are necessary. One is to exclude dust, germs and air from the diseased parts, and the other is to set up the healing process at the same time. The new medical compound, Cadum, accomplishes both these results so effectively that the itching is stopped soon after it is applied, and the sore parts heal up quickly. Cadum is just as effective in the cure of pimples, blotches, acne, herpes, eruptions, chafings, psoriasis, sores, etc. 10c and 25c per box at all druggists.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WRITE AND APOLOGIZE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am eighteen and think very much of a young man aged twenty.

He has told me he loves me. The other day I saw him talking to some girls. When he tried to speak I would not answer him, so the next time he saw me he did not speak, either.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I want to know if you think I ought to apologize to him, or what should I do, as I think a great deal of him? IRENE.

I AM glad you have given me this chance of helping you.

No matter what happens never let jealousy get the better of you. Ill luck and discontent are bound to follow unless you learn how to control your jealous feelings.

In this case there was really no cause for jealousy.

It is only right that you should apologize. Write him, telling how sorry you are not to have spoken to him. Explain that you were at fault and that you hope it will never happen again.

Try to remember all through your life that jealousy never pays.

UNSUITED TO EACH OTHER.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-three, have a steady position at which I earn $25 a week, and have been keeping company with a young woman of twenty for about five months. For a month we loved each other dearly. Then she became cool toward me. When I took her to task she said she meant nothing wrong. But I have given her up and stopped meeting her. She became angry and sent her father up to my home to see me. I explained all the trouble. She then began to write postcards begging me to forgive her, and I did.

A few days ago I took her to Revere Beach and spent over $15. On the way back in the car she began to flirt with another young man. I remonstrated with her for doing this.

Now, dear Miss Fairfax, kindly advise me what to do. Shall I give her up. I have given her jewelry valued at $200.

I learned that she had a young man in San Francisco who had a poor position, but when she learned that my salary was good she dropped him for me. A. B. C. Q.

P. S.—We were engaged two months ago.

I AM afraid this girl is not worthy of your regard; for if she really cared for you she could not treat you in this way.

Young people often do not realize the seriousness of marriage, and this might excuse her first action.

But to repeat this behavior does not look as if she were acting in a straightforward manner.

My advice to you is to make up your mind, now that you are entirely unsuited to each other.

GET FRIEND TO WRITE LETTER.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

By accident I got a young woman on the phone about a month ago. After the necessary conversation I rang off and later got her phone number through another source.

Since that time I have called her up several times—in fact, almost every day—and wanted to meet her, but she will not do so without a proper introduction.

On the phone we are very good friends, have rather long talks, and are very congenial. From our conversations I have gathered much information about her, and she about me; we have slight mutual acquaintances, but have not yet succeeded in being introduced.

Would it not be all right to meet, as we know each other so well over the phone? What would you suggest as the proper course to follow? R. D. M.

IT should be a very simple matter, if you have mutual acquaintances, for you to secure a letter of introduction if a meeting could not conveniently be arranged.

Though you say you know these persons but slightly, still I feel sure one of them would be very willing to render you this service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By ALICE STUYVESANT

Copyright, 1910, 1911, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

HE could not find out for some time whence the vehicle would come, but at last heard from some employe of the hotel that it was to arrive from St. Pierre de Chartreuse, whither it would return with the ladies.

This was disappointing to Michel, because it ceased to appear strange. It was natural enough to engage a conveyance of the hotel at which they intended to stop, where the landlord might make a better price for incoming guests than would one about to lose his clients.

Michel was on hand when the carriage arrived at the Chamounix Hotel, and saw Miss Ricardo and Miss Verney go out to look at it. There were two good horses; the vehicle was a well-appointed landau, with a rack for light luggage behind; and the driver was a noticeably smart young man.

He had a clean-shaven face, as dark as a Spaniard's, but rather long, wavy black hair, which fell from under a broad-brimmed hat over the collar of his coat. He was tall, with a fine slim figure, and was dressed like a peasant.

Miss Ricardo and Miss Verney seemed to be very much interested in the carriage, which arrived toward evening, and they asked the picturesque young man a number of questions in Italian, of which Michel understood only a few words. They were answered in the same language—and it surprised the detective that the driver from St. Pierre de Chartreuse should be an Italian.

In No Hurry

He reflected, however, that "Ricardo" was an Italian name, and this expedition was Miss Ricardo's affair. That might explain the seeming mystery, yet he resolved to find out all about the matter, when he had followed the ladies to St. Pierre de Chartreuse, as he not only intended to do, but to be close upon their heels.

Even apparently unimportant details were of interest when connected with this case, and nobody could tell what bearing they might have upon it.

That night the coachman put up his horses and slept at Chamounix. Next morning early the ladies were ready to start; and Michel, who had engaged a vehicle for himself, started also. Other driving parties, as well as automobilists, were leaving the hotel at the same hour, and there was no reason why he should be remarked by Miss Ricardo and Miss Verney.

The ladies were evidently not in a hurry to reach their journey's end, or they would have chosen to travel by train or motor. The first day, having started early in the morning, they reached La Grande Chartreuse in time for luncheon. Paul Michel was not far behind.

He too, stopped to eat, and saw the great monastery, like most other travellers who toured in this direction, and several times encountered Miss Ricardo and Miss Verney, who scarcely glanced at him. Once, in the vast, deserted monastery itself, they condescended to show their Italian-speaking driver something of the place, or else he, being already familiar with it, was playing guide.

Michel could not be sure which was the case, but the young man walked respectfully by Miss Verney's side while Miss Ricardo wandered ahead, with a volume of Murray in her hand.

"I wonder?" Michel began to ask himself, in response to a striking idea which was knocking at his mind.

He had no portrait of Ian Barr as a grown man, for the reason that, if any had been taken, Scotland Yard had not been able to learn where or when. Michel had, however, an old picture of Sir Ian Hereward's young relative, as a boy of thirteen, made in Barr's school days, and discovered at a local photographer's since the murder.

The detective slipped it between the leaves of his guide book, glancing from it to the face of the long-haired coachman, and comparing the features. But he could not be sure that they were the same. If this dark peasant in the wide-brimmed hat were Ian Barr in disguise, that disguise was a good one.

The only thing was to watch and wait. If Ian Barr were really conducting his fiancee and her friend, he would betray himself sooner or later.

The party took three days on the way to St. Pierre de Chartreuse, though they could have accomplished the distance in less time. Perhaps they lingered on the road only because it was beautiful; perhaps because a pair of lovers dreaded to part. Michel was a vigilant spy, but he could not discover, so far, that any private interviews took place between the coachman and Nora Verney.

NEVER before had his beautifully hosed calves travelled so fast. They flashed like fireworks among the Alps, and their vivid hued out-hued all the mountain flowers which they passed.

The pursuing bear was also making good progress. He did not wear hose himself, but he wore a hopeful smirk, and his tongue licked his lips as he sped after the flying man.

Suddenly a voice above them cried out, "Hey!" It came from a tourist, who was pointing his camera down at them from a safe height.

The sound of a human voice seemed to give the pursued one fresh hope. He made a spirt, and drew ahead.

"Hey! Hold on there, old chap, can't you?" yelled the camera fiend. "You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in."

LENGTH

"Well," panted the defeated foot-racer, "you won fairly, but you beat me by only a nose."

"Huh!" gasped the other; "I beat you half a yard."

"Yes; that's what I said."

At which point the hasty interference of the referee became necessary.

Cured by an External Treatment

You are remarkably fortunate if you are without some skin trouble. It may be only pimples or blackheads, or chapped hands, or the accidental sore, cut, scald, burn or boil, or the carbuncle or felon, or perhaps the more serious diseases of eczema, tetter, shingles, milk-crust, dandruff or psoriasis or inflamed piles, or some common irritation of the skin. There is one standard sovereign remedy within your ready reach, and which you can purchase at any druggist's. It is Resinol Ointment, put up in screw-top opal containers, selling at fifty cents and a dollar, according to size. It is ever ready for use, and as easy to apply as cold cream or vaseline. Thousands of physicians enthusiastically prescribe Resinol Ointment, and hundreds of thousands of families depend upon it, and are never without it. Resinol Soap is a chemically pure toilet soap of the highest grade. It contains in a modified form the same medication as Resinol Ointment, and is recognized as a preventive for many skin troubles, including blackheads, chapped hands and pimples. There is nothing better for the cleansing of the scalp and shampooing. It prevents the falling out of the hair. It is the infant's soap, par excellence, keeping the skin sweet and healthy and preventing many of the troubles which so often attack the delicate skin of the child. YOU BUNK HERO. I'LL GET YOUR ROSAMOND YET, CLAUDE ECLAIRE!
THIS FREIGHT CAR WILL SEND YOU AND YOUR HAND-CAR TO DESTRUCTION, DESMOND.
WHATS THIS COMING DOWN ON THE OTHER TRACK. A SWARM OF HORNETS ATTACKING A HANDCAR
CURSES! THIS SWARM OF HORNETS ARE STILL FOLLOWING ME. AND OLD GOMGOTZ DESERTED ME, EH
A FEW SHOVELS OF THIS COAL WILL SCARE THEM AWAY AND SAVE THE POOR SUFFERERS
WE'RE ON A TRESTLE. SHAKE THE COAL OFF AND WE'LL ATTRACT SOME BOAT BELOW
COAL AT LAST MATES! THERE'S A RUNAWAY HANDCAR FULL OF IT. WE MUST GET IT AT ALL COSTS!

CLAUDE MY HERO. I LOVE YOU!
ROSAMOND, THE HORNETS HAVE PROBABLY KILLED THE WRECKED DESMOND BY THIS TIME. NOW WE CAN BE SO HAPPY AGAIN!
THEY THINK ME DEAD, EH? SOON AS I FIND GOMGOTZ I WILL HAVE THE LOVERS IN MY POWER ONCE MORE
HERSHFIELD

It seems cruel of Claude Eclaire to doom Desmond to death, but Rosamond must be protected at all costs. The villain is tied to the handcar and the freight train is backed up against it with a bump. As the handcar is sticky with molasses, the hornets will follow Desmond to death.

In the meantime, Chief Gomgots, on Little Philip's roller skates, scoots rapidly down the track away from his white master. The villain is being pursued by the infuriated hornets as the handcar rolls along. A train upon the other track is also to be observed in the above picture.

Now you see the reason for introducing the train. The engineer sees the cloud of hornets hovering above the captives on the handcar and at once resolves to save the helpless victims. Of course, he does not know that the handcar is bearing Desmond to his just fate.

Sure enough, the hornets were discouraged by the coal, just as a fire may be put out with a few shovelfuls of sand. And as the handcar goes over a trestle, Desmond and the rest shake the coal off. It falls aboard a steamship which has run out of fuel, and the crew gets after the handcar.

It does not take the gallant sailors long to get up the trestle and stop the wild career of the runaway car. They are surprised to find unwilling passengers aboard, and quickly untie the scoundrels. Thus justice is foiled once more, and again Desmond is free.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, as he is for another time in the ascendant. The villain is going to make things hot for that true hero, Claude, whom Desmond in his blindness regards as a bunk. Watch to-morrow's pictures closely, and in the meantime observe how——

A Cure for Old Age

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

WHEN a woman discovers a new cure for every physical and mental ill, the men never permit themselves to be swept off their feet by enthusiasm, and, before they evince the slightest personal interest, they ask feebly, as if knowing that the financial end of things is all that is beyond their comprehension, "What does it cost?"

They will be pleased with the latest commandment, or creed, or edict, or prescription, whatever one may term it, of the pastor of the New Thought Church of Oscawana-on-Hudson, for it is a cure that costs less than pills or druggists' cosmetics. And it is a cure every woman is seeking: A cure for old age, the greatest of all mankind's inflictions.

"When we know how to extend our mind consciousness out into the consciousness of the multiple cells of our body, we can stop maturity and eventually cure all ills," says Dr. Julia Seton Sears, pastor of the church, and whose appearance indicates that she takes her own medicine, and it does what the guaranty claims on the bottle.

Must Have Income

"If a woman of sixty wishes to look like one of twenty-five in face and figure," says Dr. Sears, "she must have faith in New Thought principles."

"She must have an income sufficient for her ordinary needs, so that she will not have any financial worries."

The men will learn, according to this rule, how vitally important it is that their wives be placed beyond financial wants if they want them to be young again and pretty.

"She must not be disturbed by anxious friends or worrying relatives."

This rule is a particularly good one, since all of us wail too much.

"She must co-operate in the treatment to the best of her ability.

"She must fast conscientiously for twelve days to be divided into periods of two days without food and one day of light nourishment.

"After the fast she must have ten days of regular diet, which must be adhered to strictly, and after that more fasting whenever necessary.

"At all times she must follow the directions of the New Thought practitioner as regards sleeping and exercises."

There is much in these directions that can not be understood by the uninitiated, but this much is as plain as the nose on your face:

Keep Out Evil Thoughts

You can be happier if you keep jealous and evil thoughts out of your mind, and, being happier you will remain younger.

It should not be the highest ambition of every woman to look twenty-five when she is sixty, and Dr. Sears did not intend her advice to be interpreted that way, but, being a woman, she no doubt understands women, and knows that the assurance of keeping young will do more to inspire women to adopt her creed than the promise of a crown Up Yonder.

It is the secret wish in every one's heart to cheat the years; approaching old age is the terror that haunts the days and nights of every one past thirty. It is this fear which drives women to health resorts and cosmetics, and if Dr. Sears can offer a better substitute in the shape of happier thoughts, she is a missionary the world has long needed.

If to be envious, jealous, spiteful, vindictive; to accuse others of weakness of which they are not guilty; to be suspicious of the motives of others; to worry over yesterday, dispise to-day and distrust tomorrow, makes gray hairs and wrinkles, then let every one enroll under this apostle's banner, and become young again.

It may not make a woman of sixty-five look like one of twenty-five, but it will at least keep her from looking seventy, and has the greater recommendation that she will be loved more than if she put her faith in pills and cosmetics, and put no rein on her thoughts.

Needed by World

The world needs women who can laugh at trouble; who refuse to harbor evil thoughts of friends and neighbors; into whose brain there is never a cloud of envy, jealousy or suspicion. It doesn't need the woman who sulks, cries or frowns. Paint and powder can't cover up evil thoughts, and evil thoughts are what made paint and powder necessary.

Think happy thoughts. Think good thoughts. Be glad, for there is so much to be glad about, and by taking just this one prescription of the many offered by Dr. Sears, the wrinkles will roll away. A sylphlike form and hair of the brightness it bore in youth may not result, but so much improvement will attend the cultivation of happy thoughts that hair and figure will become of the minor importance that they should be.

If the heart is all right, the rest will be.

Keeping Cool

THE heat wave had come! Even the dogs couldn't muster energy to bark, and the conductor who lolled at the back of his car could scarcely keep his eyes open.

But he did observe the youngster who for a mile or more trotted doggedly alongside the car. And at this the conductor marvelled.

And at last, when the car drew up, he inquired:

"Ain't you hot enough? What d'yer wanter run like that for?"

"Oo-oo!" gasped the errand-boy. "Hot enough? 'Course I am! That's why I'm keeping alongside you. Wanter keep in the shade as much as possible!"

A FAIR QUESTION

Willie—Pa?

Pa—Yes.

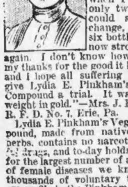
Willie—Teacher, says that we're here to help others.

Pa—Of course we are.

Willie—Well, what are the others here for?

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Erie, Pa. — "I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory, from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Without trying it no woman ought to say this medicine will not help her case.

A Thrilling Story of Wireless and War

"I'LL kill you for that," choked Ganley, his face contorted like a wrestler's, shaking and twitching, but not moving from where he stood.

McKinnon, with the revolver still in his hand, stepped between them.

"There's been enough of this prize-ring work," he cried as he faced Ganley. "I want to know what all this means."

"It means I'm going to get that woman," panted the other man, his face still grayish purple with rage.

"How get her?"

"Get her in irons, where she belongs."

"I stole nothing," interrupted the white-faced girl.

"She Lies!"

A stab of inapposite remorse went through McKinnon as he remembered that he himself was the cause of this last and unlovely scene.

"She lies!" Ganley was saying.

"Hold on there!" said McKinnon, getting a firmer and firmer grasp on both himself and the situation. "I came into this cabin and found you beating a girl over the head. Say what you've got to say about it. Then the girl can say what she has to say."

Ganley stared at his self-appointed judge.

"Are you the master of this ship?" he demanded.

"I'm the master of this situation," calmly replied the wireless operator, with a pregnant upthrust of the revolver which he still held in his hand. "And before our little party breaks up I'm going to understand what it means."

"Then ask this woman what she stole from me."

McKinnon had to feel and test his way as he went, like a man on thin ice.

"You mean for the woman to speak first?"

"Yes," retorted Ganley; "and she's going to do more than speak."

McKinnon turned to the woman, who stood still staring at him in unbroken and puzzled silence.

"Well?" he said at last.

"What must I explain?" she finally asked, still studying his face.

"What you carried out of my cabin," answered Ganley.

"You want me to explain that?" she asked, her eyes on the younger man's face.

"Yes," answered the operator.

"Must I tell you?" still parried the perplexed woman.

"You must," McKinnon replied.

"It was the contract made between this man and the wireless operator of this ship," she deliberately answered.

"A contract?" said McKinnon.

"It was the agreement you signed to become a partner of this man."

Didn't Understand

"And you tore this agreement up?" demanded McKinnon with an assumption of incredibility. He waited for her glance of intelligence to show him that she had caught some vague inkling of his position, of the attitude of armed neutrality he was strugling to retain in that strange tangle of interests; but she did not seem to understand.

"You saw me tear it up," she replied, wondering in turn just what was expected of her, anxious not to endanger him by any foolish misstep on her part.

"Why?" asked McKinnon.

"I could not see any one tied to a man whose hands are stained with blood."

Ganley laughed a heavy and mirthless laugh, as though resenting the theatricality of the woman's phrase.

"That's a hell of a reason!" he mumbled in his sullen guttural.

"I did it because I know what this man is," went on the woman, turning her slow and puzzled stare from the operator to Ganley.

McKinnon now in perfect control of himself, wheeled about to the Columbinelike figure in the black raincoat and the Chinese silk pajamas.

"You are Richard Duffy, acting with the Consolidated Fruit Concern and the authorities at Washington for the capture of a man named Ganley, are you not?"

"I am," answered the man in the raincoat, doggedly facing the young woman. McKinnon could see her lip pucker up with its little curl of unspeakable scorn.

"The man lies!" said the girl in her calm and deliberate tones. "This man is Ganley, 'Kingmaker Ganley,' himself!"

The man in the raincoat once more laughed his sullenly derisive laugh. His contemptuous defiance seemed to nettle and anger the woman into more coherent thought. When she spoke next she uttered her words more incisively, more quickly.

Buzzard of Tropics

"This man," and her scorn was infinite, "is the buzzard of the tropics, the creature who waits and watches over sick republics, who prowls about after dying governments to pick their bones!"

"You're crazy!" scoffed the man she was accusing.

"He's called 'Kaiser Ganley,' the gun runner, 'Pasha Ganley,' the agent of every Central American patriot," she continued. "He's the fighter who never comes to do his own fighting. He's the man who sucks his living out of a blinded and ignorant people's gun-wounds."

"She lies!" declared Ganley, blinking up at McKinnon indifferently, as though to note the effect of her words on him.

"He drugs these simple-minded people with war talk and blinds them with the glitter of a little gilt braid!" went on the woman, with increasing bitterness. "Then he turns and robs them."

"And there he is, the colleague, the intimado you have found, the man who made a tool of Juan Parra and murdered him or had him murdered in the swamps of the Magdalena, the man who was given twelve hours to make his way out of Brazil, the man that even Zelaya refused to stand by.

"He is the upholder of the weak who shipped 25,000 rounds of ammunition into Locombia, embedded in lard, and 2,800 carbines crated and invoiced as laundry equipment, and nine cases of dynamite that went out of Mobile as land fertiliser for the Costa Rican coffee plantations."

To Be Continued To-morrow

What It Said

"I WANT," began the elderly man, after strolling around the furniture shop, "er—I want—well, you see, it's this way: There's a young man calls every night at our house—I have a daughter, you see—and—er—I suppose I ought to get a sofa for them—eh?"

"We have the very thing, sir," replied the suave assistant promptly. "Here you are, sir! 'Cupid's Retreat,' specially suited for courting couples."

"'Specially suited'?" repeated the fatherly one.

"Yes, sir. Observe the pretty covering; it is absolutely guaranteed to wear off in just six months."

"But—but," stuttered the parent, "I don't understand."

"And when worn off," went on the salesman, "it leaves displayed a card upon which is written, 'Time to Get Married!' Neat, isn't it, sir!"

A MEAN SCHEME

"Yes; I'm saving for a house."

"I can't save any money. How do you manage it?"

"By getting my wife to go without things. She thinks we're saving for an automobile."

OH! YOU SUMMER GIRL! KILL THAT SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Society Lady Says You Can Forever Kill All Traces of Superfluous Hair and Wear Low Necks and Short Sleeves Without Shame—Offers the Secret Free.

In these hot days of summer, every woman should be a summer girl, wearing low necks and short sleeves for comfort and looks. At this time of the year, a woman who is humiliated by possessing masculine hairy arms or by a disfiguring growth of hair on the face or neck, is especially to be sympathized with.

For this reason we are glad to print the announcement of Mrs. Caroline Osgood, a gracious society lady, that she has succeeded in banishing all trace of Superfluous Hair, so that it never returned, and that she will send the secret absolutely free of all charge to any other sufferer.

Mrs. Osgood states that, like thousands of others, she had tried scores of advertised things in vain, only to find that she had wasted her money, and that in some cases they caused serious injury. She had therefore about given up all hope of ever finding relief, when she learned of a simple method hitherto kept secret by the Japanese, which succeeded perfectly.

She offers substantial proof that in a miraculously short time all traces of unwelcome hair completely disappeared, and that the hair has never since returned. The means used is, she says, wonderfully simple, and can be used privately at home without any assistance, and with absolute certainty that it will cause no burning or injury of any kind; but with eminently satisfactory results.

Which would you rather be? The poor hot lady with the veil and long sleeves to hide her hairy face and arms, or the girl who pays for her cool attire by being ashamed of her hairiness; or the real summer girl, cool and pretty, with never a sign of hair growths to disfigure her? This article tells you how to have your choice.

To all who are troubled with hairy arms or little tufts of disfiguring, masculine hair on the face or neck, Mrs. Osgood will send her secret whereby she was cured, absolutely free and without charge. Think what this means—to be able to go about free from this disfiguring blemish—to know that one's beauty is unimpeached, and one's appearance improved a hundred fold—to be able to go without a veil, to be able to wear cool, low collars and short sleeves and to dispense with gloves on hot days—surely all readers will be deeply grateful to Mrs. Osgood for her kindness.

All she asks is that you send a 2-cent stamp for return postage, and she will send her secret and full particulars by the next mail or so, quite free. Simply send your name and address and 2-cent stamp to Mrs. Caroline Osgood, Suite 118, H. A., 118 East 28th St., New York City.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A judge was questioning an Irishman.

"Do you believe in patent medicines?"

"Rather! My brother has benefited very much by them."

"Which kind did he take?"

Anty Drudge Knows.

Mrs. Oldfogey—"I don't believe in new-fangled ideas. Old-fashioned ways are best. No Fels-Naptha soap for me!"

Anty Drudge—"Some day you will wake up. You'll grow tired of the old-fashioned way of washing with its long hours, washtub slavery and backache. Then you'll try the Fels-Naptha way. I know you will, because I've met just such prejudiced women before, and they always join the Fels-Naptha army some day."

It is a natural instinct to keep on thinking that one's own way is best. Which probably explains why there are still women enslaved by the old, hot, hard kind of washday.

But reason overcomes instinct. That is part of reason's business. And there are a million women who have gone over from the big range-fire, the overheated house, the steaming suds and smell, the scalded clothes and the hard-rubbing to—the Fels-Naptha cool, easy washday.

How is it with you? You have the testimony of the million. Better still, you have the chance any day, any hour, to test our claims for yourself.

A cake of Fels-Naptha, water just as it comes from the spigot or pump, and the directions printed on the red and green wrapper—and you are ready to wash or clean anything.

JOKERS PUT O. K. ON PAUL REVERE

The midnight ride of Paul Revere is now pronounced authentic. The American Humorists' Association delegates in convention here went over the route to-day. In a memorial drawn up on the battlefield at Lexington they pronounced that Paul Revere was a good, serious minded patriot and that if he had lived in the present day he would have been a great humorist.

Of course they are 136 years late in giving Paul his O. K., but that there were a lot of puns, the humorists themselves call them buns, about "two if by land and one if by sea," and the punster, or punsters, agreed that Paul missed half his fun by not having a modern touring car in which to make the historic trip.

The delegates boarded automobiles at the Hotel Brunswick at 11 o'clock and rode over the famous Paul Revere route to Lexington and Concord. They were the guests of E. A. Grozier of the Boston Post. They dined at the Frencroft Inn and then took a ride along to the beautiful North Shore, viewing the Summer home of President Taft.

Has Distance Record.

To-morrow the humorists go to Plymouth, leaving South station at 10:40 o'clock, and will have dinner at the Samoset. They will return in the afternoon. Friday will be passed at "Dreamland," the summer estate of Thomas W. Lawson.

The latest recruits at the convention are "Hank" Warner of the Baltimore Sun, who is familiarly known to the jokesters as "Daddy," and S. E. Kiser of the Chicago Record-Herald.

The longest jokester at the convention is Douglas Maloch, the "Lumber Jack poet" of the American Lumberman. He is something over 6 feet 3, but his jokes are said to be so short that it takes a microscope to see them. He is accompanied by his wife and two pretty children, Dorothy and Donald Maloch. The little mascot of the convention is Anna Susman, a pretty little miss from Texas.

"Cy" Warman Is About.

"Cy" Warman, president of the association, is about the slickest "hand it to him" joker that ever struck Boston. Every time a Boston newspaper man gets within a mile of him he calls on his friend, E. W. Miller of the Chicago Post, and says, "Here, Miller, is a man I want you to meet." Miller is "stung," and Warman is lost in the crowd.

Detroit is out strong for the convention next year, and it looks as if it would get the humor—beg pardon, honor. Detroit has promised the humorists a lot of breweries and such things, and so the humorists take the place quite seriously. The lineup for officers for the coming year is very much in doubt, and even the jokers refuse to take any of their members seriously for any office.

WHITE WILL WORK FOR GRAND TRUNK

Norman H. White of Brookline, one of the three candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, announced today that he is in favor of the Grand Trunk Railroad's coming to Boston, and that he will make it one of the chief planks in his campaign platform. If elected Governor he will ask the Legislature to pass such legislation as will secure the road's immediate entrance into the city. Mr. White took up the Grand Trunk matter, which was started by the AMERICAN, in his speech last night at Lowell, and his references were loudly cheered. Mr. White said:

"Mr. Walker, now a candidate for the nomination against me, advocated the New Haven-Boston & Maine merger of 1908, which delivered over New England's transportation facilities to a monopoly."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STEEL COMMON OFF A POINT

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Pressure was exerted upon the stock market at the opening to-day and depressive advices as to the irregularity in the Americans in London market came from London, so that the two cases combined to give the list a nervous tone, which was accentuated by a four point drop in certain prices. Canadian Pacific was hammered on strength of unfavorable crop news, selling down to 235. Sharp concessions were made in many other shares. The railroad group was hard hit and the industrials suffered in consequence. Bad crop weather news was the chief factor.

Northern Pacific, which started ⅝ lower, fell ⅞ more, going to 119⅜. Both Union Pacific and Reading yielded 1 point. Amalgamated Copper dropped 1 point to 61. American Smelting declined ½ to 70⅝. Steel common sold off a point, passing 73 on the decline.

The Texas company, which has been dropping since the death of its founder, John W. Gates, continued its downward movement, falling 2 points to 95, the lowest figure at which the stock has been traded since it was listed on the exchange. Atchison opened ⅛ higher.

The curb opened quiet. Standard Oil had lost the 2 point gain it made yesterday, 600 being the first bid.

Americans in London were irregular. Pressure on Canadian Pacific was a feature of the London market.

Heavy buying by a prominent commission house offset the effect of a bad break in cables and the cotton market opened from 1 point lower to 1 point here to-day. It was estimated that this house alone took 15,000 bales on the call. Although this was represented as covering to many traders, it had the appearance of a bull move. Later prices broke about 4 points. Futures and spot were dull in Liverpool. The effect of the strike in Liverpool and Manchester on the textile industry was pessimistic.

Cotton opening: September 11.33, October 11.28, December 11.35, January 11.28, March 11.36, May 11.44.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

As Union Pacific was the leader in the recent smash, all traders and brokers are looking for it to show the future trend of the market. Whenever Union shows a disposition to rise somebody seems ready with stock for sale.

$ $ $

All State Street is almost unanimous in the belief that Monday's advance was due to the oversold condition of the market. Conservative bankers say the same conditions still exist that prevailed at the time of the decline, so that they do not expect a further upward movement unless it is based on the running in of the short interest, which is very large.

$ $ $

The demand for stocks in the loan crowd is reaching extraordinarily large proportions, especially that for the three leaders, Union Pacific, Reading and Little Steel.

$ $ $

To judge from the unvarying reports of prolonged drought in the crop-growing districts of Russia and India as well as in the United States, one might be warranted in believing that "Dies irae, dies illa" is at hand.

$ $ $

The Harriman lines report on the crops in the territory traversed by them that a condition of corn fully 10 per cent. better than was estimated in the government report as of August 1 is now indicated. Many other private crop reports now being received in the street are equally encouraging.

CAR BUILDING RECORD IN 1912

By J. C. KERRISON.

The work of demolishing Madison Square Garden in New York City will be commenced the first of February next—virtually immediately upon the close of the automobile show.

Certain plans are now on foot looking towards the construction of a building further up-town that will meet the requirements of a large exhibition hall. The impression is that this building will be constructed about Eightieth street, but that is problematic.

The only thing that is positive is the final demolishing of the present Madison Square Garden and the construction on its site of a large business house.

Upon his return from conferences with the branch managers, Benjamin Briscoe, president of the United States Motor Company, made the statement that the year 1912 would see the greatest production of motor cars in the history of the industry.

Mrs. Briscoe expressed the opinion that the production of power-driven machines next year will be not less than 210,000, aside from motor trucks. He further says that 60 per cent. of these passenger vehicles will be for utility purposes, as the motor car has now become such an important addition to modern civilization that every man who has to travel any distance must have a car, or fall behind in the fast moving world of business.

Three entries for the Glidden tour have been received by the Contest Board. They are all from Atlanta residents, they being Edward P. Ansley, Byron N. Grant and C. H. Johnson.

Mr. Ansley enters his 1911 Pierce-Arrow, one of the two cars which he recently made a complete tour of the national highway, Florida extension and all. He will make the tour with members of his family. Mr. Grant enters his 1911 Marmon thirty horse-power touring car. The machine is now in the East on a pleasure tour. Mr. Johnson enters his Stevens-Duryea, 1912 model, ordered from the factory, but not yet delivered to him. It is a forty-four horse-power machine.

These three gentlemen are the first Atlantans to pay the fees for the popularized Glidden tour.

A novel transcontinental tour is scheduled to leave New York on October 2. This tour, known officially as "The Trail to Sunset," will be on a scale never before attempted. Fifty people in ten seven-passenger Garford cars will make the trip, which will be 4,000 miles in length, from New York to Los Angeles. The promoters have the assistance and co-operation of the American Automobile Association, and their official representative, A. L. Westgard, is to pilot the trip.

HAMMOND BACK ON FRANCONIA

The Cunard liner Franconia arrived to-day from Liverpool and Queenstown with 278 saloon passengers, 384 second cabin and 817 steerage. Among the saloon passengers were John Hays Hammond, the special ambassador of the United States to the coronation of King George V., Mrs. Hammond, their daughter, Miss Natalie Hammond, and their infant son.

Mr. Hammond said he was very sorry that he was unable to talk, owing to his official instructions.

He manifested much interest in what Congress had been doing during the past seven days that he had been on the water. When told that the Senate was holding up the peace treaties his comment was, "huh."

"I spent considerable time in Scotland, but did not go to the Continent. Aside from the labor troubles, business in England is dull, as perhaps is but natural at this time of year," said Mr. Hammond.

"American securities are regarded as 'good' in England. Sentiment regarding the Canadian reciprocity agreement is mixed, with members of the House of Commons not inclined to view it with favor.

"I think the Taft administration is proving exceedingly able, but in view of my returning from a special diplomatic mission to England I of course do not care to discuss political developments."

Gentlemen—In renewing the advertisement of my new apartments at 1293 to 1301 Commonwealth Avenue, Allston District, Boston, I wish to say that the advertisement in the American's Apartment Column has produced most satisfactory results.

Not only were the applications numerous, but the class of people who looked at the suites were tenants that I should be proud to have in any apartments operated by me.

Radical in Talk, Reactionary in Deeds

Mr. Roosevelt's formal explanation of his Alaskan conduct of 1907 perfectly illustrates both the foresight of his reactionism and the hindsight of his radicalism.

As appears from his own story, he prepared the way for the syndicated control of Alaska by his orders of July and September, 1907, which took out of the public domain and opened to private entry the lands at Eyak and Valdez Arm.

His excuse for these unfortunate proceedings is that in 1907 monopolistic exploitation of Alaska was a contingency so vague and remote that practical men like himself could not be expected to have such an idea in mind. Only prophets of extraordinary inspiration could at that ancient date have guessed that any motive but pure altruism would rule in that exceptional country!

Mr. Roosevelt goes on to say that he was sure that Alaska was immune from syndicates because Cunningham said so and swore to it. He rests the whole weight of his innocence on "the Cunningham affidavit." This Mr. Cunningham, of whose disinterestedness in Alaskan matters suspicious persons might have some doubts, is a rock of ages to the ingenuous Mr. Roosevelt. Thus he says: "Cunningham swore he knew of no entrymen in the Cunningham group that had any contract with the Guggenheim syndicate." And so Mr. Roosevelt, being a practical man and no dreamer, naturally enough lets down the bars.

Now that the wolves have got into the fold—under circumstances so honorable in the head shepherd of 1907—Mr. Roosevelt is filled with eloquent indignation about the conduct of those who have followed his own example.

In this simple tale are all the marks of the man we know—fire-eater and fable capitulator, the lion-lunged and fox-footed Roosevelt, radical in talk, but pliant and reactionary in his recorded deeds.

Mr. George Godoy Is in Love

At Least He Says So in His Poem. Read That Poem. It Is Important.

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

It is really a pleasure to print the poem that you will find below.

Nine-tenths of the people who write to this newspaper complain about something.

Taxes are too high, gas is too dear, trust villains are too rich, noble workers are too poor, "the roaring lion and the creeping snake" seem to be doing their worst in nearly all of our lovely American homes.

But George Godoy, the poet, who sings triumphant just below, has no complaint to make. To him the world seems perfect, the thunders are quiet, the volcanoes do not vomit fire, the bloody dagger is on a vacation—the last line of the poem tells you why.

Gentle reader (or fierce reader), have you ever been in love?

If you have, you know why George Godoy feels as though he must get this poem printed.

Read it.

TO-DAY.

To-day the woodland seems more lov'ly; hear
The birds sing sweeter than they ever sung;
The murm'ring waters seem more limpid, clear;
The scented breeze has ne'er as softly rung;
The dancing leaves upon the trees appear
Much greener; Nature and the azure sky
To-day I venerate, and they know why.

To-day the burning sun's refulgent rays
To me seem brighter than the miser's gold;
This life I worship, and I love and praise
The God who brought me to this world; the old
To-day seem young, and when my eyes I raise
To ether'al space, amid the clouds, behold!
A million angels soar with diamond wings,
And I am happier than the proudest kings.

To-day the thunders shall not clash and shake
The world; volcanoes shall not vomit fire;
The roaring lion and the creeping snake
And cunning tiger to their lair retire;
The bloody dagger shall the criminal break;
Repent the drunkard—tell the truth the liar;
Mankind rejoice, and God the base forgive—
The tombs fly open, and the dead shall live!

To-day who knows; perhaps some Pow'r Supreme
Has made this world a Paradise; I kneel
Before the throne of God; to-day I seem
To recognize that life is true, is real—
Not an ephem'ral and fictitious dream;
My ardent passion I shall now reveal,
And vow by Him who rules the heav'ns above:
TO-DAY'S THE FIRST TIME I HAVE BEEN IN LOVE!

GEORGE GODOY.

[If we knew George Godoy's age, the last line of the poem would be even more interesting to us all.—Ed.]

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

WANTS THE ARMY AND NAVY PROTESTED FROM FOUR HUNDRED

Editor AMERICAN:

The visit of Admiral Togo naturally makes us think of our own army and navy. The great success of the Japanese in the late war with Russia was due to the businesslike manner in which they went at the work, and Admiral Togo was quoted a few days ago as saying to his daughter when he started for the fleet that was to meet the Russians, "Don't write me letters, as it will only detract and take my mind from the work in hand."

It is also generally spoken of as a fact that the Russian officers spent more time in society and social functions than in drilling the men and looking after their comfort and welfare.

A few days ago the papers reported that Mr. Von L. Meyer, the Secretary of the Navy, had taken a member of our so-called Four Hundred on a trip to the bottom of the sea in one of the submarines of the navy. Of course, it was probably a good move socially for Mr. Meyer (if he is a social climber), but when it becomes necessary to amuse the indolent, pleasure-seeking women of society at Newport and elsewhere by the use of the army and navy isn't it about time to call a halt?

Do you suppose the Standard Oil or the Steel Trust use their officers and plants to amuse the social element? If we keep on we will have the same kind of army and navy as some other countries where the chief aim of the officers is to kill time and climb the social ladder.

The army and navy have been fairly well kept out of politics, and let us try to guard them from a greater evil.

WHY NOT RECALL JUDGES?

Editor AMERICAN:

Following closely your splendid editorials, I have been expecting for some time an editorial from you on the recall of judges. Why should the judiciary be regarded as in the past—kings? Are not the people the final judge? It makes a man indignant to know that another man, because of a little more learning, should have absolute authority.

Disillusionment of Old-Fashioned Girl; How She Became a New Woman

When Sent Out Into the World to Earn Her Own Living, Man, Whom She Had Hailed a God, by His Actions Transformed Her Into a New Woman Who Believes Women Should Help Form the Laws.

THIS was the story as it was told to me.

There was a sweet old fashioned girl, who held high ideals of men.

Whatever was masculine, was great and wonderful to her.

She believed men to be the creators in all realms of achievement; the leaders in the world of thought; the levers of progress; and she worshipped them as Archangels, a little lower than the One God. When there was any discussion of woman's equality, she was disgusted with all who suggested woman as man's equal in any way.

To her it was a delight to feel that she was inferior to man; and her pride and happiness lay in the vocation of a devotee, at the shrine of masculinity.

She knew there were two kinds of men; the good and the bad; and she felt very sorry for the bad men; believing it was the fault of their mothers that they had gone wrong.

One day it became necessary for this old-fashioned girl to find a self-supporting position.

A friend of the family secured employment for her, in a business block, where half a hundred men prominent in the world of finance, transacted large affairs

The Old-Fashioned Girl as a Stenographer Saw Representative Men

There were heads of great corporations; with all their staff of assistants; and every day, going up and down in the elevator, the old-fashioned girl was blessed, and honored, by the sight of these representative men.

Her employer was one of them; and often others came into his office, to talk with him or to transact business.

In one part of the building where the old-fashioned girl worked, there was a banquet room, where these men sometimes lunched or dined.

As the weeks grew into months the girl learned many things about the habits of these representative men.

She had supposed they were serious men, feeling a sense of great responsibility. She knew they handled hundreds of thousands of dollars of other people's money.

She knew they were factors in the progress of the city in which they lived. She believed they would regard such obligations as sacred.

One day her employer was asked to meet several other men at the banquet room at lunch hour to talk over what was termed "a big deal."

The old-fashioned girl was a stenographer and she knew much about this deal. It seemed to her that the prosperity and peace of thousands of people were at stake.

When the employer came back from the lunch room, after two hours, in which he had been very busy eating and drinking, he brought three other men with him, all representative men, holding high positions in the world of finance.

The four men seemed to have gorged themselves with food and drink.

Their faces were red, the eyelids heavy; they smelled of cooked flesh and alcohol. They suggested hogs, or anacondas, fed to repletion.

A violent revulsion of feeling came over the old-fashioned girl.

The men she had regarded as a little lower than the One God, the great and good and wise leaders of colossal business affairs, stood in her presence, on the level with gorged swine.

Papers were drawn up and signed, while the men were still in the befoggled condition which follows overeating or drinking.

And the old-fashioned girl wondered if these were indeed the leaders and rulers, the pillars of strength, the guides and heroes, she had spent her life in worshipping afar.

As weeks passed, the disillusioned young, old-fashioned girl began to find a change in herself.

She was ceasing to be an old-fashioned girl—she was becoming a New Woman.

All her ideas of life were transformed and reconstructed.

She no longer thought men as great, and it did not seem unreasonable to her to regard women as man's equal.

The Men Who Brought About the Change Were Not Bad Men

The men who had brought about this change in her thougats were not bad men; they were not drunkards; but they were gourmands, and self-indulgent, and devoid of high ideals.

They were not such men as their positions demanded they should be, so thought the girl.

Now this is the story as it was told to me.

I do not know that it contains any moral.

It merely shows the workings of one girl's mind, and the transformation of an old-fashioned, manworshipping girl into a New Woman, who believes women should help form the laws, and help reshape the world.

Lessons in Swimming

By WILLIAM R. CARPENTER

I LED her gently to the sea,
And when a wave
Splashed o'er her foot, she looked at me
In manner grave,
And shivered at the cold of it,
And then returned.
But after urging her a bit
The land she spurned,
And plunged into the waves with me.
And when she rose
She had imbibed a quart of sea
Through mouth and nose.
Then to my task I bravely fell
To teach her how
To emulate the fish, and—well,
Recalling now
Just how she giggled, laughed and wept,
And how she talked,
Just how she settled down, and leapt,
And how she balked,
I think the chance is out of reach,
And very slim,
That e'er again I'll try to teach
A girl to swim.
